SUMMARY.

The French advance continues in Belgium and Luxemburg. The cavalry have reached the eastern frontier of Luxemburg.

Three hundred thousand people deliriously acclaimed General Gouraud on his entry into Strasburg.

The General, in a proclamation, lauded the city's unshaken fidelity to France, despite the odious German yoke.

Paris is preparing an enthusiastic reception for King George on Thursday.

The German surrendered navy has been taken to Scapa Flow, in the Orkney Islands.

There are 87 U-boats at Harwich, including the submarine cruiser Deutschland.

The advance guard of a small British fleet bound for Kiel sailed on Monday morning.

It consists of a flotilla of minesweepers to clear a passage for a squadron.

The internal situation in Germany is reported to be highly critical. The extremists in Berlin are growing bolder.

Unless the home-coming troops vigorously support the present Government the Liebknecht-Spartacus group will be masters.

Many army meetings have protested against the Bolshevik methods.

The Bavarian authorities are determined on a rupture with Prussia if Bolshevism is successful in Berlin.

Famine is expected in Germany unless the Entente comes to her aid.

Mr. Doschfleurot, cabling from Berlin, says Germany has reached the absolute limit, and lies exhausted.

The issue now lies between a democratic constituent assembly and a Proletariat Soviet Government.

Influential circles are urging the Government to invite President Wilson to visit Germany, or some German port.

There is a daily meeting at Spa between French, British, and German armistice delegates.

The German delegate angrily strikes the table when the Allied delegates refuse to yield to the German demands.

It is understood the preliminary peace conference will be held in Paris instead of Versailles.

The ex-Emperor Charles states that the pressing need of Austria is help from the United States.

The danger of Bolshevism is growing serious, and suffering from lack of food in Vienna is certain to be severe within a few weeks.

The ex-Emperor said he could only repeat that he did his duty. He did not show any bitterness against the Allies.

A Tokio message states that the Siberian Government at Omsk has appointed Vice-Admiral Kolchak as Dictator.

The sweeping of the Bosphorus has been completed, and the British and French vessels have gone to various ports in the Black Sea.

A Paris message states that a British regiment in Pera disarmed the last German contingent in Constantinople.

The Allies will shortly assume control of the Turkish Customs.

A campaign for the election of General Pershing as President of the United States in 1920 has been started in Ohio.

The trial of Dargin at Capetown for the alleged murder of Glanville has resulted in his acquittal.

Four more deaths have occurred at the quarantine station, and there are six additional cases.

The death roll is now 22 out of a total of 89 cases.

Dr. Paton gave an address before a conference of municipalities and shires yesterday called to discuss preventive measures.

"If the disease gets out of quarantine it will be very quick, short, and sharp; it will sweep the community," he said.

Three depots for inoculation will be opened to-day—at the Central Recruiting Depot, Hyde Park, the Water Police Court, and the Newtown Town Hall.

The Health Department urges the public to avail themselves of vaccination at the earliest opportunity.

General vaccination will, it is pointed out, be of great assistance in minimising an outbreak.

The medical authorities do not guarantee that vaccination will furnish immunity from the disease.

The probabilities are, they say, that it will be of great assistance, and should minimise complications consequent on influenza.

The registered contents of a mailbag despatched from Leeton were found to be missing when the bag was opened in Sydney.

The Minister for Defence has been urged to give immediate consideration to the return of munition workers from England.

One of the blast furnaces at Lithgow blew out yesterday, and a foreman who was standing in front of the plug, met with an awful death.

He received the full blast of the molten metal, and was buried beneath a mass of white hot metal. Several others were injured.

Before the Interstate Commission, Edward Brush, a teamster, said he once owned a sawmill, but had been starved out.

His Sydney agent advised him that he could not sell his timber because he was not a member of the vend.

A contractor who purchased his hardwood was refused supplies of requisites by other merchants.

In the Assembly Mr. Fuller gave notice of a bill to amend the electoral law to provide for a new system of voting.

The method, whether preferential voting or proportional representation, will be left to Parliament to decide.

A motion for the introduction of a bill providing for the initiative and referendum was moved by Mr. Kearsley.

He contended that the electors should have the right to decide important national questions. The debate was adjourned.

In answer to questions in the Assembly, the Premier said there was no discontent in the Cabinet.

Neither was there any truth in the statement that the Government contemplated a general election at an early date.

An estate agent, giving evidence at the inquiry into house rents, referred to overcrowding in the city.

The council's officers were, he said, making a house-to-house inspection in some overcrowded areas.

In two cases tenants had received from the council notice to quit within seven days.

An inquiry was held before the Prices Commissioner into the prices of bran and pollard. The evidence showed there was a shortage.

The shortage was mainly due to the prevailing drought and the increase in poultry raising.

Mr. Joseph Callaway, a well-known Sydney cricketer, died yesterday in a private hospital in Brisbane.

Mr. C. E. M'Leod, the international cricketer, also died yesterday in Melbourne.

The Railway and Tramway Officers' Association has elected by ballot several assessors in the Industrial Court.

The condition of the troopship Barambah on her last voyage from Australia was referred to in the House of Representatives yesterday.

It was stated that the vessel was in a dirty condition, and had broken down three or four times between Melbourne and Fremantle.

The Minister for Defence has approved of the cancellation of the Press censorship restrictions enforced during the war period.

New South Wales won the first of three interstate bowling matches in Melbourne yesterday.

The war loans raised in New Zealand up to September 30 amounted to £39,250,000.

There was a large gathering of soldiers' wives and mothers at a thanksgiving service in the Town Hall yesterday.

A steady turnover was effected in investment scrip at firm prices on the Stock Exchange yesterday.

There was a continued demand for all Christmas goods in grocery lines, but otherwise business was slow.

Forecast.—Sultry and unsettled, with rain and thunder from a monsoonal disturbance over the north-eastern half of the State. Some beneficial falls and isolated and strong local blows.

The average Business Girl has had an increasingly difficult problem to face during the last season or two, for her limited allowance for dress has become of less and less buying power. Business Girls know this too well, but what can they do to remedy affairs? They can, thanks to Farmer's, receive a very practical education in the art of buying wisely and to best advantage, for, after all, this is the principle underlying Mademoiselle's specially prepared lecturettes and demonstrations each day this week. Our Dress and Fashion Page advertisement continues the tale from here. Suffice it to say that every—yes, EVERY—Business Girl, in whichever sphere she labours, should read it fully and attend to-day's or to-morrow's or Friday's session, for such an opportunity knocks but once at each girl's door.

The reversion to white does not necessarily involve the wearing of the stiff-fronted linen shirts, which are quite unsuitable for Australian Summer Weather.

Peapes introduce three light soft-fronted Shirts of proven quality.

THIRD DAY OF A CAMPAIGN SPECIALLY PLANNED FOR

"THE SMART BUSINESS GIRL."

LUNCH-HOUR LECTURETTES CONTINUED BY MLLE. D'ALROY, AT FARMER'S, FROM 1.20 TO 1.50 P.M.

ALL ABOUT

RIGHT WAYS TO SPEND ON THE RIGHT THINGS TO WEAR

FOR SMART AND ECONOMICAL RESULTS.

If you are a Business Girl you know just how closely the subject of expenditure upon smart clothes interests you. You know the cost of keeping up a smart appearance day by day—only too well.

Sometimes you get very tired? perhaps, just at this very moment. If so, attend Mlle. d'Alroy's Lunch-hour Lecturettes, specially planned for the "Smart Business Girl," and delivered in Farmer's Display Theatre, First Floor, between 1.20 and 1.50 p.m.

You will emerge with a dozen smart dress schemes buzzing in your head. Your enthusiasm over your appearance will be renewed—mainly because the imaginary difficulties over quite a number of things you wish to do with your wardrobe will be explained away. You will find that the purse you thought so little is quite big enough. Mlle. d'Alroy, like the Fairy God-mother in the tale of Cinderella, seems to wave a magic wand, and, presto! all the smartest, simplest, most practical attire with the right accessories are assembled before you. Scales seem to fall from your eyes, and you see things in right proportion; that is, if you are a Smart Business Girl.

PRACTICAL WINDOW DISPLAYS PROVE FARMER'S ABILITY TO DRESS AT SMALL EXPENSE THE SMART BUSINESS GIRL.

The Window Displays should prove a very real help to you. Becoming, practical blouses, skirts, dresses, hats, shoes, hose, neckwear, are showing at very economical prices in these windows. They prove Farmer's ability to dress the "Smart Business Girl"—to look her best, at small expense.

The following priced items are carefully picked out as suitable for the Smart Business Girl—and her pocket.

FREE TICKETS OF ADMISSION GIVEN ONLY TO BUSINESS GIRLS.

SMART FROCKS FOR SMART BUSINESS GIRLS.

THREE EXAMPLES FROM SCORES NOW SHOWING IN COSTUME SALON, SECOND FLOOR.

Few, indeed, the business girls who will have a fault to find with such frocks as here exampled. They are the very personification of smartness, yet possess that certain elusive charm of modesty so much desired in a business girl. Her keen eyes will at once see their great possibilities for service; and she will appreciate their coolness—each and all are washing dresses—but of such serviceable colourings that you can wear them for quite a long while before washing is required:—

BANDEAUX BRASSIERES FOR SMART BUSINESS GIRLS,

WHO, ABOVE ALL OTHERS, SHOULD WEAR THEM.

The Smart Business Girl, above all other women, should invest in Bandeaux Brassieres. They keep the shoulder blades straight and the bust line smooth. They are essential when you wear plain shirt styles—for these lose their smartness immediately the shoulder blades are rounded. They are very inexpensive, made of the coolest and strongest materials possible. The added good looks to your figure, apart from the comfort added, should alone induce the Smart Business Girl to invest.

READY-TO-WEARS MAKE IDEAL BUSINESS HATS.

AN ASSORTMENT NOW SHOWING THAT WILL BE WELL APPRECIATED BY THE SMART BUSINESS GIRL.

About the Smart Business Girl's Hat. How essential is it to keep her headgear fresh and smart she well knows. A Hat worn often in moody Sydney weather so soon loses its "chic" appearance and somehow affects the whole costume. But the Smart Business Girl, visiting our Millinery Salon, after attending the Lunch-hour Lecturettes, will find numerous Ready-to-wear Styles, upon any one of which her money will be well spent. The following are selections:—

A USEFUL HAT OF COARSE STRAW, with the medium round crown trimmed with a fine quality faille band and fancy square bow, finished with ribbon ends; the brim is slightly rolled and edged with silk to tone, and is half underlined with Tagel. In Navy, Cherry, Vieux Rose, Brown, Putty, and Black. PRICE 8/11

A WEEK-END BEACH HAT of plaited reed, comfortable fitting high crown, swathed with a fringed scarf in Roman stripes. PRICE 9/11

THE SMART BUSINESS GIRL KNOWS ONLY TOO WELL

THE FRESH EFFECT OF NEW RIBBONS.

The clever fingers of the Smart Business Girl can utilise the Season's New Ribbons in many charming ways around the crown of a hat. She also knows the fresh effect of a new tie on a Shirt Blouse. THE VALUE IS UNQUESTIONABLE, almost equal to pre-war prices, and the price is only about half that is asked elsewhere for nets of similar quality.

TEN THOUSAND TO CHOOSE FROM.

AT FIRST GLANCE

it seems a phenomenal stock to carry of one make of Corsets, but when that make is the unrivalled

WARNER'S RUSTPROOF CORSET

you may be sure that the [illegible] are sufficiently phenomenal to justify the stock.

TEN THOUSAND "WARNERS"

Consider the variety the number has to cover.

THE INTERMINABLE LIST OF MODELS, including something specially designed for every sort of figure, for every purpose, and for every use; yet continually added to, as the slightest change of Fashion's [illegible] demands a modification of existing lines.

Then the different colours, from the plain White to the most elaborately decorated Corset that graces the wardrobe of extreme taste.

And in every Model, in every colour,

THE ALL-INCLUSIVE RANGE OF SIZES,

without which your choice would be limited indeed.

TEN THOUSAND PAIRS!

No wonder that the Woman of to-day, confident in the knowledge that

EVERY WARNER IS A CORSET OF COMFORT,

a Corset of Fit, a Corset of Fashion, and a Corset of unrivalled Wear, turns to a stock like this, with the certainty that whatever her figure, her taste, her finances,

THE WARNER TO PLEASE HER IS AWAITING HER COMMAND.

All the New Summer Models are now Showing. Will you be in To-day?

NAUTILUS CORSETS

PREFERRED FOR FIGURE AND FASHION.

There are corsets preferred for the figure [illegible], they certainly are comfortable to wear, but —how they do spoil the beauty and the [illegible] ness of the frock. Other corsets again produce smart lines, but grip uncomfortably.

NAUTILUS CORSETS

give you just the lines for to-day's fashions without any pressure or discomfort whatever. The makers of Nautilus Corsets devote days to the cut of the corsets—they have to be masters of the accuracy first—every new Nautilus production is tested on a living model. Each season the Nautilus experts produce more advanced styles—a feature which enables Nautilus to hold its place—as the leader in Corset styles.

Write for Free Book Q18 of a few popular models. If you have difficulty in procuring these corsets communicate.

TO COMMEMORATE THE GREAT VICTORY, in an everlasting photograph of yourself, one to hand down to posterity,
Showing you as you were (as you are) at the time of the great victory.
To encourage this we are going right back to our pre-War prices, in that enormous value we used to offer every Christmas before the War.
Here it is.

This is our Great Victory offer, don't miss it.
Never in the History of Photography has there been such an offer—Never, never, never.
SEND US A PHOTOGRAPH.
The same offer as above, but with 6 Cabinets instead of 12, taken from a photograph, is 30/. This is extraordinary value. It is much more expensive to copy and enlarge from a photograph than it is from the sitter.
Over the Counter Prices: cut to the quick.
AN EXPLANATION.
During the War we had branch studios in the various military camps, which gave us such an increase in business as to overtax our very large resources, sometimes causing delay in the delivery of our orders. We beg to thank our patrons who bore with us during that period, and to assure them a quick delivery now that our camp studios are closed and the military business over.
Please note that this wonderful offer can only be obtained at THE CROWN STUDIOS.
We take photos in any weather, wet, cloudy, or sunshine. Studios open daily till 5.30 p.m.
Fridays we take photos up to 9 p.m., as good as daylight photos, and the same price.

BUILDING MATERIALS.

A GILT-EDGE INVESTMENT

is a "Fibrolite" built structure. Be it your Office, Home, Factory, or Week-end Cottage, build it of "Fibrolite," and your money is spent wisely and economically.

HARDIE'S "FIBROLITE"

GENUINE ASBESTOS CEMENT SHEETS

are composed of Pure Australian Cement and long, tough Asbestos Fibre. They contain no vegetable matter, such as paper refuse, etc., nothing to rot or decay. For interior walls and ceilings you can get nothing more serviceable or more handsome in appearance than "Fibrolite."

You can nail "Fibrolite" directly over old papered Walls and Ceilings, or to the studding of new partitions. You can saw it just like timber. For partitions in Offices, Factories, Private Dwellings, etc., "Fibrolite" should be utilised. "Fibrolite" is so easy to erect—you can do the work yourself.

"Fibrolite" is Fire and Weather proof, and improves with age.

"A" ASBESTOS BUILDING MATERIAL

"DURABESTOS."

"DURABESTOS" is the original Australian-made Fibrous-Cement Product, and is the only material of its kind hydraulically compressed—this makes it superior to all others in finish and durability.

"DURABESTOS" is particularly adapted for the construction of Bungalows, Garages, Elevator Shafts, Stairways, Store rooms, Silos, Linings, Roofings, etc.

"DURABESTOS" is fire-resisting, waterproof, fume-proof, and rustproof—white ants won't touch it. It is a non-conductor of heat and cold.

"DURABESTOS" once used will always be used. A high-class building material, moderate in price, it stands alone.

THE BIG X AGAIN SUCCESSFUL

IN THE 24 HOURS' RELIABILITY TRIAL.

2 EXCELSIOR MOTOR CYCLE OUTFITS came through with full points.

5 EXCELSIORS only started.

This success coming right on top of the clean sweep at Canterbury Park on the 2nd inst., proves the reliability of the EXCELSIOR, both for speed and durability.

The EXCELSIOR is the only stock motor cycle to attain a speed of 100 miles per hour, and is the machine that succeeded in climbing the Capistrano Hill, a 75 per cent. Grade.

Facts speak for themselves. Inspect the EXCELSIOR Flexible Side-car, and you'll have no other.

AND THE STECK PIANO.

The Steck of International fame is one of the very few pianos that established a fine reputation in this country prior to the war. Consider the number of quite unknown pianos that are being offered for sale under present war conditions! Why there is absolutely no comparison.

DURABILITY is a special feature, as is well known to tens of thousands of our satisfied customers throughout Australia.

Only the highest quality materials are used in the construction of the instruments we sell with our full guarantee.

PALING'S PIANOS are built to last a lifetime. They are constructed to resist the most changeable climates—why not your climate?

W. H. PALING AND CO., LTD., 338 GEORGE-STREET, SYDNEY.

A LIFETIME COMPANION, THE BEALE PIANO.

MADE IN AUSTRALIA.

Each piece of timber used in a Beale Piano has been perfectly kiln dried to prevent warping or splitting. We have found this absolutely necessary to ensure tone permanency. Fine workmanship and painstaking effort are wasted if poor materials are used. The Beale Piano is built to endure, and that it does endure and give satisfaction is evidenced by the fact that seldom is one seen for sale in auction rooms, etc. This kiln-drying of timber is only another instance of the determination of the Beale organisation to keep under their own control all those vital processes in the manufacture of a good piano.

HOW TO MAKE A GOOD NON-POISONOUS COUGH MIXTURE.

To avoid the dangers attendant upon the giving to children of cough mixtures containing such habit-forming opium drugs as paregoric, laudanum, and morphia, parents will be well advised if they make their own family cough mixture from HEENZO (registered name for Hean's Essence), which is a compound of non-poisonous herbal extracts, needing only the addition of warm water and sweetening to make a most reliable treatment for chest and throat troubles. Each bottle of HEENZO will make a family supply of ready-to-use mixture. A like quantity of ready-made cough remedies would cost from 12/ to £1, according to quality. HEENZO costs only 2/ (by post 2/3), and is obtainable from all leading Chemists and Stores, or direct from G.W. HEAN, Manufacturing Chemists, 178 Castlereagh-street, Sydney. Those who prefer a lozenge to a liquid remedy should use HEENZO Cough Diamonds, price 1/ per tin.

THE CASE FOR THE CROWN.

CHAPTER XX.—Continued.

They crossed the High-street in the sunshine together, and presently entered the shop of the little grocer, who himself stepped from behind the counter with eager politeness to greet so important a person as Mr. Bowen of the Bank.

"Good morning, sir," he said. "Good morning, gentlemen. What can I do for you?"

"Oh, nothing very much, Magness," Bowen said carelessly. "But this gentleman here is somewhat interested in a bank-note that has gone astray. You must quite understand that there is nothing wrong about it, but, at the same time, my friend here would like to have the matter cleared up. It appears that the note in question was paid into my bank this morning, which to a certain extent clears up the mystery, but not quite. So far as I can gather the note was passed over my counter by you."

The little man smiled doubtfully.

"I certainly paid in some money, sir, directly after the bank was opened," he said. "And amongst the money was a five-pound note. Yes, that is so."

"Would you know that note again Magness?" Bowen asked. "Because there is no question that the note I speak of was paid in by you. Nothing to be alarmed about."

Magness changed colour, he seemed to be covered with confusion, and glanced helplessly round his well-stocked shop, as if seeking for some avenue of escape. In his quite way Archenfield was watching him closely. At a sign from him Bowen took the note from his pocket.

"Here it is," he said. "The note you paid me this morning. I wonder if you took the number of it. I know that some tradesmen do."

"Well, I didn't, sir," Magness stammered. "Usually I do, just as a precaution, but I didn't this morning. Oh yes, sir, that's the note right enough, and I am not going to deny it. I recognise it by that stain in the right-hand corner, and there is the mark of a finger print on the back. I do hope there is nothing wrong, gentlemen."

The little man was dancing about from one foot to the other as with what to some eyes would have looked like an appearance of guilt, but as far as Archenfield was concerned the man appeared to be more like a schoolboy detected in some trivial fault than a potential criminal.

"Oh, there's nothing wrong," Bowen said. "You have only to tell us where you got that note from, Magness, and there is an end of the matter."

"That's just it, sir," Magness whispered. "You've put me in rather a mess, but I am a respectable man and I don't want any wrong impressions created. The fact is this, gentlemen. I was in Lyddmouth yesterday, and a friend persuaded me to go to the races there, which is a thing I have never done before in my life. And I don't want anybody to know it, least of all my wife. And I went, and who should I meet there but Mr. Flint, who manages the racing stable here, and because he owes me some money that I can't get, he gave me what he called a tip. And I was weak enough to put a pound on a horse with what's called a bookmaker, and I won five pounds. And the bookmaker gave me that five-pound note and my pound back, and I came away. And that's the solemn truth, gentlemen. And I hope you'll respect my confidence."

"Oh, there's no harm in that," Archenfield said. "Now, Mr. Magness, can you tell me the name of the man with whom you had the bet?"

Magness pondered over the question for a moment or two, and then his face lighted up.

"Yes, I can," he said. "He's a big man who stood by the rails just outside the paddock, and his name was on his bag, and his red umbrella. His name was—yes, I remember—his name was Wal Mockett. That's all I know."

CHAPTER XXI.

"THE SPORT OF KINGS."

There was nothing in the expression of Archenfield's face to show the effect that the little grocer's information had upon him. His lips were pressed tightly together, his brows were knitted in thought, his eyes had narrowed, and he was paying no heed whatever to the more or less trivial remarks that his companion was making. It was only when they were back again in the bank parlour that he grew more expansive.

"What we have just discovered," he said, "opens up a still wider prospect, and makes the problem somewhat difficult. I must first of all find this bookmaker."

"Well, that won't be difficult," Bowen said. "As a matter of fact, the bookmaker in question lives at Lyddmouth, and as the races there last for three days you are not likely to have much difficulty in finding him."

"Then in that case I will go over at once. I wonder if you would mind coming along with me?"

"Well, it wouldn't be the first time I have been on a racecourse," Bowen laughed. "To tell you the truth, I am by no means averse to a mild gamble myself, and, in any case, I was going to motor over to the Lyddmouth racecourse this afternoon. So if you don't mind stopping with me to lunch we can go together. But, tell me, do you really attach any importance to the information you have just obtained?"

"I attach the greatest possible importance to it," Archenfield said gravely. "It may lead to nothing, but, on the other hand, it may take us a long way. And, anyhow, it is very interesting. How could one of the missing notes, which we believe Robert Molyneux never parted with, find its way to a bookmaker? That is what we must find out."

It was past 2 o'clock before Archenfield and Bowen arrived at the big racecourse which was situated in an old park on the outskirts of the town, and there, during the progress of a race, they wandered about the enclosure until the excitement had simmered down. There began one of those dreary intervals between racing which makes the sport so uninteresting to the mere outsider. It was at this point that Archenfield suggested a stroll along the rails outside the paddock till they came at length to a red umbrella on which was inscribed the name of the bookmaker they were in search of, and by the side of it stood a big man in a strident suit of elaborate checks, who was refreshing himself from a paper of sandwiches, and drinking champagne from the neck of the bottle. As he caught sight of Bowen he lifted his hat politely, and inquired if he could do anything with him on the next race.

"It looks as if you were having a good day, Mockett," Bowen said. "But then you bookmakers always do."

"Well, I'm not grumbling, sir," the big man said. "Now, sir, have a bit on for the good of the game. Here, I'll lay you seven to four against the favourite."

"I'll take that to a fiver," Bowen said. "But that isn't what I came to speak to you about. Look at this note, Mockett. You paid it out yesterday to an Oxley tradesman over a bet. Do you remember it?"

"Lor' bless your soul, no, sir," the bookmaker replied. "I am receiving and paying out banknotes all day long. But I hope there's nothing wrong about it."

"Not in that sense," Bowen replied. "But for reasons which I need not go into, my friend here is very anxious to trace that note. Now, do you think you can help him?"

"Well, perhaps I can, sir. But I won't deny that a good many notes come my way from people who haven't any right to them. It's all part of the game, and no business of mine. You would be astonished if you knew how often the police come to me about notes that have been passed on the racecourse. Still, I have got a pretty good memory—you wouldn't make much money at my game if you hadn't—and I may be able to trace it. Now, you gentlemen come back to me after the next race, and I'll see what I can do for you. Leave the note with me. It looks like a clean one, and I'll refer to the numbers of the notes that I make every night in case I should come up against some of the "boys" and find myself relieved of my little parcel. Well, and what can I do for you?"

The bookmaker's tone changed, and the question put to the newcomer who had thrust his way forward was neither respectful nor friendly. The man was holding a note in his hand, and was asking questions as to the odds against a certain horse in the next race. He was a tall, thin individual with a dissipated face and a ragged moustache, a typical racecourse frequenter, who was not alone, but accompanied by one or two callow youths of good class who seemed to hang upon his words as if he were an oracle. As Archenfield glanced at him again he saw that he was face to face with the man whom he had seen the night before looking for the gold box in the shrubbery of the Red House garden. Obviously the stranger did not recognise him, for the simple reason that when they had met in the darkness Archenfield had been entirely obscured behind the light of his own electric torch. Therefore he could afford to stand there casually and listen till the bets of the tall man and his smallest dupes were made, and the whole group swaggered away in the direction of the paddock.

ONE BIG UNION.

Mr. Garden, secretary to the New South Wales Labour Council, stated yesterday that it had been decided to hold a demonstration in the Domain, on December 8, in support of the one big union scheme. The following organisations had been asked to give their assistance:—Australian Socialist party, Australian Labour party, the Socialist Labour party, the Foodstuff Protection party, the Freedom League party, the Socialist Democratic League, and the One Big Union committee.

WOMEN'S COLUMN.

EQUAL PAY FOR EQUAL WORK.

In view of the present inquiry into women's wages, the following extracts from "The Englishwoman" may be of interest. The writer deals chiefly with the question of equal pay for equal work, but her views on the effect such a system would have in relation to the responsibilities of fatherhood are somewhat original:—

"The question of equal pay for equal work, whether done by men or women, which has been seething in the minds of workers and perplexing the counsels of thinkers since the beginning of 1915, perhaps first sprang into public notice during the month of August, when the strike of the 'bus girls gave it a practical application that could not fail to be appreciated by Londoners, at any rate. The women conductors are doing the work of men, and doing it well. By agreement, they were being paid at the same rate as the men they replaced. This arrangement of equality was, however, upset when the Committee of Production accorded to the men conductors a war bonus of 5s per week and declined to extend to the woman conductor a like advantage. After certain remonstrances on the part of those concerned, a strike was called by agreement on the part of the men and women members of the trade unions involved in the dispute, and after a day or two of extreme inconvenience to the general public, and serious interference with production in important industries, the strikers returned to duty with the understanding that the 5s in dispute was unlikely to be longer withheld. The Committee of Production climbed down, and on August 21 the women acclaimed the award of a 5s bonus, which made their wages equal those of the male conductors.

"The women's strike was obviously engineered rather to help men who might otherwise be ousted from employment than to accord women workers a just reward for their labours. The 'bus women are replacing men, and as the men return to this country released from their military service they desire to replace women. This they might find it difficult to do if it were obviously to the advantage of employers to retain their female workers.

"A woman is not a man. Her abilities and her disabilities are not the same as his. In the labour market she must have something to bargain with when she meets the employer in the gate. What is it to him, as an employer, that he is talking with the mothers of the race, present and to come? Nothing at all. He beholds in them 'hands' of uncertain value and problematical permanence, persons requiring special conditions and arrangements suited to their sex; and if they are to be paid precisely the same for their output as the male workers, then it is likely enough he will turn them down every time, unless there is a serious shortage of labour. In some trades, such as the linen trade, there is a perennial shortage of labour—but then it is among the most poorly paid of all textile industries. Is it into such poor employments that we may be driving our skilful women operatives if we advise them to adopt everywhere the formula of equal pay? Turning to another aspect of the problem of women's employment and women's wages, let us for a moment consider the incidence of custom and public opinion. The war, and the social revolution that accompanies it, have in truth laid the axe to the root of many a tree, and customs have changed with a celerity that might make us breathless in contemplation of the feat were not our eyes (so long engaged with matters domestic) now fixed on far horizons. Yet it is a very ancient custom, rooted in a hoar antiquity, to give men much and women little in the matter of possessions. Is it likely that public opinion has really veered to the point of believing that they should be paid alike for a day's labour? When workpeople strike for a better wage, it is well known that public opinion has much to do with the chance of settlement. Now, the question of equal pay for women is not, in the eyes of the public, merely a question of what is 'fair' in the matter of remuneration for work done; it is a question of the earnings of a husband and father as compared with the earnings of a person who has (or is supposed to have) no similar tie. Is it 'fair,' the great public will be arguing in the immediate future, that a single woman should have the same wage as a family to live upon? Curiously enough, they do not trouble themselves about the single man (he is supposed to be a potential head of a family), or about the problem of paying the father of six the same wage as his mate who has no children and a wife earning 'good money.' No doubt this is wholly illogical, but here custom supports the inequality, and public opinion is little likely to be found in revolt, at any rate in the near future.

"The moral factor governing the situation of a father's relation to his children in respect of maintenance may not be lightly dismissed by those who recognise the importance of the home and family ties in the national life. It is even a commonplace of psychology that the appeal of the helpless young to the mother-instinct of care and devotion has been the cradle and starting point of the nobler emotions and instincts of humanity. Its taproots, indeed, extend far beyond history, and even penetrate the mysterious regions where through ages of slow evolution the animal functions were perfected. Does the moral nature of man as that of woman need no longer guiding by the silken rein held in the tiny hands of young children? Surely the greater independence of women renders such influence of even graver importance in the evolution of the higher side of the masculine character than it has hitherto. Motherhood is an inalienable privilege and glory in which the physical burdens and instincts of woman are immediately dominated and led by the bands of unselfish love. Paternity may be wholly divorced from such noble influences in the case of many; its finer instincts are not immediately connected with birth and the infantile needs, but are rather developed as the little child depending upon the father and nourished through his labour becomes a part of his life and the regenerator of his spirit. Where, in the Republic of Plato, an ideal for the education of the children of the State includes the removal of the young babe from the mother's care and the concealment of its paternity, we recognise the strange immorality of a conception that could ignore the mighty impulse of unselfish love in the framing of national character. With many men, of course, one realises that the State provision for children would in no way interfere with the influences of home life; but in supporting such proposals, Argus must look not only upon the more highly developed, but upon those whose humanity needs every stimulus."

FROM NEAR AND FAR.

The direct result of the efforts of the Women's Reform League on Jack's Day amounted to £372/10/1. The work of the other branches was absorbed by the War Chest and Red Cross. The Girls' League took part in the rose fete, Centennial Park.

The War Chest Thimble Fund has been closed after being in existence for 17 months. During that period £800 has been realised by these useful souvenirs. The fund was inaugurated by Mrs. N. Thomson, who, with Mrs. and Miss Willis, formed the committee. The thimbles still unsold have been handed over to the War Chest for the appeal on November 29.

The Army Service Corps Comforts Fund opened a sale of lingerie and baby clothes at Messrs. Perdriau, George-street, city, on Tuesday. The articles have all been made by workers at the depot, and include many artistic as well as plain garments. Lady Davidson visited the stall in the morning and expressed her delight at the high-class work that was being sold. The proceeds of the sale, which will be continued on Wednesday, will be divided between Jack's Day and War Chest Day Funds.

The Army Service Corps Comforts Fund (No. 2) held a gift afternoon at Sargent's, George-street, on Tuesday. A musical programme was arranged by Mr. Sydney Jones, and the performers included well-known artists from the Playhouse. Mrs. Charlton, president, and Mrs. Bourne, hon. secretary, acted as hostesses, and were assisted by Mesdames Finks, Guy, and Loreme.

UNDELIVERED A.I.F. LETTERS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

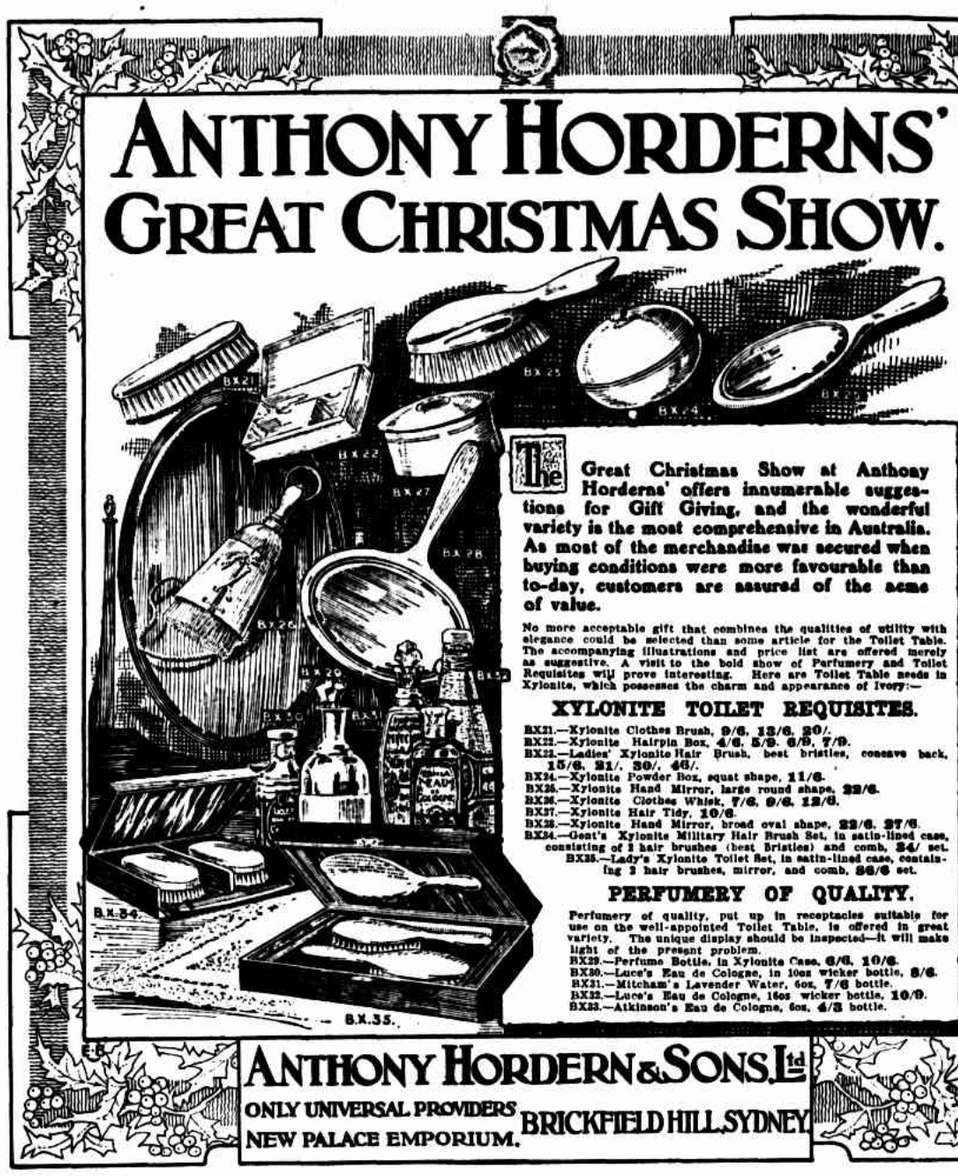

A cable message received by the Minister for Defence, Senator Pearce, from the Commandant of the A.I.F. headquarters in London, states that if the envelopes of all letters sent abroad to members of the A.I.F. were endorsed on the back, "Undelivered, return to ——," stating name and address of the sender, a great saving will be effected in the postal section of the forces.

APPRECIATION OF THE A.A.M.C.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Officers of the A.A.M.C., who had served abroad during the present war, tendered a dinner last night to Surgeon-General Sir Neville House, V.C. In responding to the toast of his health, General House said that before he left England, Surgeon-General Keogh of the Imperial Forces, sent for him and expressed his very high appreciation of the A.A.M.C. The Director of Medical Services, C.M.F., Surgeon-General Featherstone, in speaking to one of the other toasts, suggested that General House, on completion of his service with the A.I.F., might succeed him in Australia, and complete the work of organising the Australian Army medical services.

Do Not Relax Efforts.

Another cable came to hand from Lieut.-Colonel Woodburn, who represents the War Chest in London. He forwarded the following message, which he had received from Colonel Durant, C.M.G., of the 2nd Division, who says:—

"Your institution is doing work of incalculable value. Throughout, the Comforts Fund and the War Chest Club have supplied most pressing needs. Only men who have served can appreciate the great mistake it would be to relax efforts because the armistice is signed. The men must still live in much discomfort. Should the Australian people now withhold their support, the great number of men would form the impression that now they have won the great battle for freedom the public is taking no further interest in them."

Australia's 5 Divisions will march unceasingly after the Germans until they reach the Rhine, where they will take up the Australian portion of the new front.

ON THE LAND.

CALF-SAVING SCHEME.

The State calf-rearing depot at Raymond Terrace was officially opened by the Minister for Lands last Saturday. The scheme has been in operation for the last two months with what are, officially, considered most encouraging results at both Albion Park and Raymond Terrace. On Saturday at the latter depot, where 310 calves are on hand, Mr. Ashford inspected the arrangements, including the feeding provision and the precautionary measures taken to obviate disease as far as possible. Only four calves have been lost at Raymond Terrace. At that depot very complete arrangements have been made for feeding the calves, especially to provide that each animal gets its right quota of milk. Adjacent to the shelter shed small yards are provided, so that the calves can get exercise and sunlight, and between every two yards are hay racks and grain troughs. There are 16 of these yards, and adjoining them are two larger yards, where calves are run in rotation to accustom them to unrestricted liberty. Surrounding the yards is a paddock of 15 acres, with additional land available, where the calves from six weeks old are pastured. In the grain shed, oats, maize, linseed meal, and prepared foods are stored. The latter are for testing in comparison as to value with the system adopted at the depot, viz., feeding whole milk to 14 days of age, substituting whey for whole milk during the following four days, during which time the calf is encouraged to eat dry feed—crushed oats, maize, lucerne, and grass hay and linseed meal.

To the termination of their stay at the depot (16 weeks of age) the calves receive gradually increasing quantities of whey to the maximum of two gallons daily. The calves, after 14 days, are given as much grain and hay as they want, and also water, while a lick is provided, consisting of coarse salt, sulphate of iron, and sweet bone meal. There are two brick cemented silos, capable of holding six months' requirements of oats and maize, but no grain has yet been stored in them. A small plant is being obtained for the purpose of drying the grain and destroying any insect pests before storing. A grain crusher is included in the plant, as the calves, till five weeks old, prefer the grain crushed. A steam boiler is utilised for sterilising feed troughs, tanks, and utensils, and rapidly warming up the whole milk or whey. Isolation yards are provided. It is proposed to isolate all calves brought to the depot until they pass the incubation stage of such diseases as white scours and pneumonia. Calves showing signs of sickness are immediately isolated and put in yards retained for that purpose.

The farmers present on Saturday appeared impressed with the precautions taken, and commented favourably upon the appearance of the calves. They were all in good growing condition, and many were fat enough to command good value as vealers. When addressing the stockowners present at the official opening, Mr. Ashford, who is responsible for the scheme, expressed pleasure at the favourable opinions expressed by them. He pointed out that, in addition to saving and rearing the calves, objectives of the scheme were to investigate diseases which were causing high mortality amongst the farmers' calves, and to test the relative merits of proprietary calf foods. Expressing the opinion that the values of cattle would remain firm, and probably increase, he emphasised the benefit of proper feeding to secure early maturity. It was estimated by the controller of the depots (Mr. M. H. Reynolds) that maize could be profitably fed to calves at 4/ per bushel, and oats at 3/6: and should the use of grain give future results equal to those so far obtained, farmers would be encouraged to use maize and oats, so ensuring to the grower of those grain crops a more regular and profitable return.

WALLABY GRASSES.

Returning from a recent trip in the Riverina and western districts, Mr. E. Breakwell, B.Sc., Government Agrostologist, reports that, notwithstanding the particularly dry conditions that obtain in that part of the State, there is just as much of that excellent sheep grass Danthonia (Wallaby or White Top grass) as was to be seen in previous years. Indeed, it is no exaggeration to say that in the greater part of those districts it is providing the majority of the useful dry feed for sheep. It is a grass of high feeding value—some of the best flocks in the State are raised on it—and its drought resisting capacity is proved by its present appearance on numbers of properties. Farmers could materially benefit their pastures by propagating it by what may be called "rough methods" of sowing. The seed of Danthonia germinates particularly well in the spring, and as it is a heavy seeder no difficulty would be found in collecting seed to sow those patches that are only occupied by inferior grasses like corkscrew or the introduced Brome grasses. All over the State—in the most elevated parts of New England, and on the most barren parts of the plains, as far west as Bourke, the Wallaby grasses are spoken of as amongst the best the year round of our native grasses.

IRRIGATION AREAS.

AUDITOR-GENERAL'S REPORT.

The Auditor-General (Mr. F. A. Coghlan), referring to the Murrumbidgee irrigation areas in his report on State undertakings for the year ended June 30, 1918, says:—

The net loss for the year, £209,297/15/1, includes no less than £184,650/10/11 on account of statutory charges for interest on capital and sinking fund. Undoubtedly a considerable portion of the sum charged for interest on capital, viz., £171,832/17/5, could not rightly be said to be chargeable to this year as a working expense, inasmuch as part is levied for works under construction, whilst part is imposed on capital which, though effective, is not yet fully employed. As the Industrial Undertakings Act provides for a charge for interest on capital being levied without any qualification, it must be assumed that all liabilities on account of plant or construction of works, whether effective or not, are subject to this charge. In ordinary business activities, however, it is not usual for a charge for interest on works under construction to be included in the trading accounts. The procedure generally followed is either to capitalise the amount or write it off over a definite period of years. It was found impossible, however, for either of these practices to be followed in this instance, on account of the insuperable barrier presented to the auditors by the neglect of the commission in not furnishing information as to works under construction or the correct dates of completion and cost thereof. Attention has been repeatedly directed to this omission, but either through lack of initiative or failure to grasp the importance of the subject, no effort has apparently been made to furnish the information. As, generally speaking, adequate charges for depreciation and renewals are reflected in the accounts, the statutory imposition of a charge for sinking fund seems unwarranted. In the case of this undertaking the burden assumes considerable magnitude, being for this year £12,817/13/3, and for the last three years a total of £35,637/4/10.

The majority of trading activities have again failed to be self-supporting, and it appears to be extremely doubtful whether abattoirs, canneries, and electrical powerhouse will reach that stage for years to come. Both abattoirs and canneries are examples of establishments far in excess of present requirements, and are only reflections of the general over-elaborateness which permeates the scheme. The effect of this over-capitalisation is clearly demonstrated in the accounts of the abattoirs for the year, inasmuch as depreciation and interest on capital were equivalent to 36 per cent. and 37.08 per cent. respectively, or in all 73.08 per cent. of the earnings. Power and fuel 58.4 per cent., and salaries and wages, 56.1 per cent., are again abnormal, requiring 114.5 per cent. of earnings to cover the services. The loss for the year was £1710/2/6, or 101.55 per cent. over and above earnings, which means that each £1 earned cost £2/1/3.

Under the heading of assistance to settlers the Auditor-General says that the total outstanding debts owing to the commission, including interest, at June 30, 1918, under this head were £195,681/6/2, consisting of—Advances on improvements and sales on terms, £181,542/17/8; live stock on terms, £11,687/9/7; suspended rentals, £2450/18/11. He adds: To date the commission, through ineffective legislation, has had practically no protection by way of absolute collateral security for a big proportion of these advances. A remedy of this deficiency is at present in the hands of Parliament in the form of a bill, which will in a large measure provide ample security for the debt and so guarantee to the general public of the State that their interest in the money sunk in this connection will in future be more fully protected. In past years a slackness in regard to the making of these advances as well as to the value of the security guaranteeing them has been apparent to the most casual onlooker, but it is refreshing to note that more recent advances have in each case been subjected to a rigorous examination and a more careful consideration, hence the proportion of loss likely to be sustained on this account has been materially reduced.

DISTRICT ITEMS.

DORRIGO.—During the past week good rains have fallen, and the country is looking well. The returns for the bacon factory show that 144 pigs were killed for 4100lb pork, and suppliers were paid 10d for super, 6d for first, and 5d for seconds. Butter manufactured totalled 27½ tons, and the suppliers were paid 1/2 for super, 1/2 for first, and 1/1 for seconds. Notwithstanding the loss of the bacon factory by fire, the company have made good arrangements for the despatch of pigs.

BERRIGAN.—The dry spring in the Southern Riverina has made a great difference in the growth and yield of the wheat crops. Although the early-sown crops are looking and filling well, the late sowings are thin and backward, and, in a number of cases, they have been a failure. This year a considerably reduced area is under cultivation as a result of the sodden state of the paddocks in the sowing season.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

A "BLOTCHED" BRAND.

"Poundkeeper."—The Department of Local Government gives the following replies to your questions:—No. 1: Is a brand on a beast a blotch brand if it is illegible through heavy deep scab and scaley growth?—There is nothing in the Impounding Act with reference to "blotch" or "blotched" brands, and no definition in that Act (or the Stock Act) of the term "unbranded animal." It would appear that the animal in the circumstances cited is not an unbranded animal. No. 2: Whether a poundkeeper must advertise a beast which has only a blotch brand on it when not released, or does it come under the same heading as unbranded impounded "stock"?—The impounded animal should be advertised in accordance with sections 12 and 11 (2) of the Impounding Act, and such information should describe the animal as having a blotched brand, and state the position of the brand, and what it apparently was intended to represent, etc.

BUILDINGS AND WORKS.

SELF-GOVERNMENT OF INDUSTRY.

Recently Mr. J. B. Holme, deputy president of the New South Wales Board of Trade and Special Commissioner for Conciliation in this State, issued a pamphlet dealing with the British scheme for self-government of industry and its counterpart in New South Wales. A copy was forwarded to the Master Builders' Association, with a request for its consideration. At last night's meeting of the association two papers were read on the subject, one by the president (Mr. Foster), and the other by the ex-president (Mr. W. Williamson).

Mr. Williamson, in his paper, after pointing out that the problem of industrial readjustment after the war would be a much more difficult one for Great Britain than that of organising the industrial resources of the nation so as to win the war, said the scheme ably advocated by Mr. J. B. Holme in his pamphlet would be best understood in its proposed application to New South Wales by a brief review or contrast of some of the features of industrial relationships in Great Britain and New South Wales. He ventured to say that it was not industrial unrest, as they knew it here, that presented the present great difficulty to the British Government. Great Britain's contribution "from an industrial point of view" towards winning the war was much greater than that of any other nation. Munition-making was the great national industry; everything else had to stand aside. No such condition existed in New South Wales. In Great Britain the making of munitions had stopped quite suddenly, and the whole of those workers had to be drafted into their old, probably in many cases new, avenues of employment, and most likely at a greatly reduced rate of pay. This was additional to the great army of five millions of soldiers that would in the near future be disbanded. New South Wales, fortunately, would not have to face such a serious and difficult industrial position. Her difficulty would be to place 100,000 soldiers, who, with the present state of transport, could only arrive here in fairly easy drafts. The war had not and would not disturb, to any extent, the ordinary industries of the State.

The Whitley scheme stood for conciliation working together for mutual good. The Arbitration Courts of Australia had followed too closely the processes of the law, and were truly Arbitration Courts—a something which should be the last resort for industrial relationships, the best illustration being the Divorce Court. Recently Mr. Beeby amended the State industrial laws with a view to bringing back a happier relationship between employer and employee; even if that were accomplished there was still the Federal Arbitration Court. It was quite impossible for the full Whitney scheme and that Court to successfully carry on at the same time. For instance, could employers give concessions that might be used as a rod for their own backs, pickled at times with insinuations that made the blood boil? In this respect Great Britain was in by far the happier position. The Whitley scheme might be an excellent one for Great Britain, but in some of its features might be worse than useless for New South Wales.

Some of the causes in this State "scarcely known in Great Britain" were worthy of consideration, such as Government industrial enterprise—its effect on the worker and its cost to the community. Then there was the great proportion of casuals, men who would not accept steady work, but preferred to hang about waiting for casual jobs, because, for the time being it would carry a much higher rate of pay. Was it not a fact that most of the red-rag element came from this class? Another cause was the large number of bright, intelligent lads who drifted into unskilled callings. Was it not a reflection that some of our skilled trades depended entirely on other countries for their workers? What could be the feeling of a young man who passed through the period of well-paid boyhood and then found himself at a dead-end?

Another cause was the strong feeling of antagonism created by Arbitration Court proceedings. Friction had grown under the processes of this Court until now it had been well termed "the Australian dispute factory." Still another was the doctrines taught "by some, who ought to know better," regarding the relationship of capital and labour. Consideration must also be given to the position of labour in New South Wales, in comparison with the workers in any other part of the world. Labour was a political power, and had risen to the responsibility of the highest offices of the Commonwealth and State. A living wage had been fixed. In most industries short hours of labour had been fixed, besides other improved conditions.

The whole community would welcome a scheme which would permanently improve the position of the workers, but it must be drafted to suit local needs. The Whitley scheme itself depended largely for its success on a form of self-government, and its framers had sought to draft what was thought to be most suitable for their particular wants. They all rejoiced in the fact that peace in Europe was assured, and trusted soon to see our men returning to take up their ordinary occupations. They had earned at least the right to settle down without the pre-war condition of growing friction and unrest. Practical ideals that would encourage our men to excel in the arts of peace as truly as they excelled in the art of war would always be acceptable, but care must be taken lest, by a system of mollycoddling, they encouraged an industrial sleeping sickness, a cure which, for the future outlook of our people, might be far worse than the disease.

Employers in this young country rose largely from amongst the employees, and the ideal placed before each lad should be to excel in his calling, just in the same spirit as he sought to excel in the playgrounds of his youth, and thus prepare to take up still greater responsibilities of citizenship.

RAILWAY FATALITY.

CAIRNS (Q), Tuesday.

A terrible accident occured on the railway line near the head of Barron Gorge, about a mile from Kuranda railway station yesterday morning. A light engine while proceeding to Cairns, appears to have left the rails at a sharp curve and turned over. Driver Thomas Duigan, fireman William Whiting, and guard James Foley were discovered sitting on the railway track terribly injured. The boiler appeared to have burst as the men were frightfully burned about the head and body. The injured men were brought to Cairns. Whiting and Duigan died shortly after reaching the hospital. Foley is in a low condition. Duigan is a married man with four children. Whiting is a single man.

A modern philosopher, a great lecturer and student of modern thought, writes this letter to

Clements Tonic

THE REVEREND GEORGE WALTERS has had a long and active career as a Minister of the Unitarian Denomination, as a student of modern philosophy and Science, and as a literary critic and dramatist.

His church work extends from Lancashire and Aberdeen, United Kingdom, to Melbourne and Sydney, Australia. He is author of the dramatic works, "Joseph of Canaan," "Thou Fool," and "Empire," or the "Tragedy of Maximillian in Mexico."

Many notable actors have occupied his pulpit in the Unitarian Church, Liverpool-street, Sydney, amongst whom may be mentioned Mr. Wybert Reeve, Mr. Graham Moffat (author of "When Bunty Pulls the Strings"), Mr. William Holman, Sen., and Mr. Walter Bentley.

The Reverend GEORGE WALTERS has also been President of the Shakespeare Society of New South Wales, and is an active member and vice-president of the Dickens Fellowship.

The following letter should be read by all students and members of the Literary Societies of New South Wales with exceptional interest:—

CLEMENTS TONIC, LTD.

"I have much pleasure in testifying that I have, at various times, derived much benefit from taking Clements Tonic.

"When feeling 'run down' and in need of 'winding up,' or when suffering from brain-fag and nerve strain, a short course of Clements Tonic has invariably brought relief and consequent re-invigoration.

"It helps one to say (with little 'Pippa,' in Browning's poem):—

'God's in His Heaven; all's right with the World.'

"(Signed) GEORGE WALTERS.

"Mosman, Sydney, September, 1918."

The medicine that goes hand in hand with good health—a kind of twin brother—that brings physical confidence, strength, mental energy, and clearness, is CLEMENTS TONIC, because it possesses those specific properties that rebuild the human constitution and strengthen its working parts. It cleanses the stomach, purifies the blood, creating new conditions of good health to the user. If any greater proof is required of the powers of this splendid medicine, the testimonies given afford it, written by those who can well afford by experience to judge of its merits. For the general good of the public they are published, and are well worth reading by everyone.

THE BANK OF AUSTRALASIA.

(Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1835.)

Paid-up Capital	£2,000,000
Reserve Fund (used in business)	2,945,000
Reserve Liability of Proprietors under the Charter	2,000,000
	£6,945,000

HALF-YEARLY REPORT of the DIRECTORS of THE BANK OF AUSTRALASIA. With the Accounts for the Half-year to 15th April, 1918. Presented to the Proprietors at the Half-yearly General Meeting, held on Thursday, 3rd October, 1918.

REPORT.

The Directors submit to the Proprietors the Balance-sheet as at 15th April last, with the Profit Account for the half-year to that date. After providing for rebate on bills current, for British and Australasian rates and taxes, and for a Bonus to the Staff, and after making provision for bad and doubtful debts and other contingencies, the net profit for the half-year amounted to £212,827/1/5.

To this sum must be added £123,309/6/10, brought forward from the previous half-year, making a total of £336,136/8/3, out of which the Directors have declared a dividend for the half-year at the rate of 14 per cent. per annum, or £2/16/ per share, and a Bonus at the rate of 3 per cent. per annum, or 12/ per share, together £3/8/ per share, free of income tax.

The Dividend and Bonus will absorb £170,000, and the Directors have further appropriated £40,000 to the Reserve Fund. There will then remain £126,136/8/3 to be carried forward to the next account.

The Dividend and Bonus will be payable, in London and in Australasia, on the 4th October.

The Directors have to record, with much regret, the death of the Earl of Lichfield, who had been a valued member of the board for more than 30 years.

The sphere of the Bank's operations is restricted by the Charter to certain geographical limits. The Directors are of opinion that the time has arrived when this restriction should be removed or modified, and they will seek the sanction of the Proprietors to apply to the Government to alter the Charter in this respect. An Extraordinary General Meeting has been called, at which the Proprietors will be asked to sanction the application referred to.

At the same meeting Resolutions will be proposed—

(a) To substitute one General Meeting annually in place of the two meetings now held in terms of the Deed of Settlement, in order to conform to the general practice now prevailing.

(b) To increase the amount divisible among the Directors by £2000 a year, free of tax, or such sum as the Proprietors may determine.

Owing to depletion of staff, the Bank's Branches at Mangonui and Whangamomona, in New Zealand, have been closed.

C. G. HAMILTON, Chairman.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1918.

ELECTIONS IN GREAT BRITAIN.

It is now almost eight years since the last dissolution of a Parliament of the United Kingdom. The elections which were decided at the end of 1911 were the second of those brought about by the Liberal party since it had gained its overwhelming majority in 1906. They were fought on issues which were described by the leaders on both sides as the most momentous submitted to the constituencies since the days of the Reform Bill. The Liberal party claimed authority to destroy the power of the House of Lords, to use the power thus obtained for the Commons in order to place a Home Rule Bill, together with other rejected measures, on the Statute Book and to provide for the payment of members. The feeling which the Parliament Bill and its sequel aroused in England has scarcely been equalled since the days of the Civil War. It produced one of the most notable crises in the history of the British Constitution, and left on the enemies of Great Britain an impression that she was incapable of defending herself. A few days after the event which had seemed to demonstrate the impossibility of reconciliation the violation of Belgian neutrality brought all parties together. Within a few hours Parliament had handed over its legislative functions to the executive, to remain with them except on a few notable occasions until to-day. Parliament during the past four years has carried out only one of the parts assigned to it by its most eminent critic. It has educated the people so far as Ministers would allow it, and has provided an outlet for unpopular opinions such as would not have been tolerated in any other national assembly in the world. Its function of choosing Ministers has been exercised by a few leaders, without a vote of the Commons, always in the real or supposed interests of national unity and the effective prosecution of the war. In these four years the one legislative act of permanent application was the Reform Bill, which enfranchised eight million electors, of whom six million were women. Under ordinary circumstances that act of itself would make a general election necessary. The constituency now in existence has entirely changed since Parliament was elected. This Parliament, moreover, was chosen on issues which for the time are completely effaced and which can never be revived in their original form. The arguments for a general election would be complete but for the immediate circumstances of the country. This Parliament has no mandate for reconstruction, but it is not clear that a Parliament elected in the present state of the public mind will have a better one. The elections must be held while the Peace Conference is sitting and while great numbers of soldiers are still absent from the country. It may be that the elections, which have been so often postponed, could not have been postponed for a few months longer. Possibly the Government did not feel entitled to carry out even the preliminary stages of demobilisation without a renewal of its authority. It is certain that there could be no need of a new election to fortify the position of British Ministers at the Peace Conference. The Government throughout has spoken for a nation as united as a free people ever can be. Its terms have been ratified by every considerable section of the people as they have been adopted in substance by all the Allies.

If the election is to be judged by the issues which may be decided during the existence of the next Parliament it is as much the most important of all elections as this war is the most important of all wars. But it is not an election which can be judged for good or evil by the results of the polls. The issue to be decided in the next few years is whether the United Kingdom is to remain subject to Parliamentary government and whether its people are to speak to the world as a united people. There is no doubt that the effacement of Parliament during the war has tended to become permanent. Labour organisations have tended to bargain with the Goverment as separate powers whose agreements Parliaments are bound to register. Socialist and trades-unionists' conferences have formulated their peace terms and claimed the right to negotiate with enemy countries. The old impatience with Parliament as a means of social reform has been confirmed by this exhibition of the possibility of treating it as a body of secondary importance. It is quite clear that the new Parliament will be very differently constituted from the old. Women's franchise may mean nothing more than a division of six million votes between two or three parties, but the decision of the Labour party in its reorganised form to contest upwards of 300 seats must mean a great change in the old divisions at Westminster. Labour in the new Parliament will stand by itself. It will aspire to govern the country, and it will place its programme of social reform before any of the old party issues. It is manifest that an increase in the numbers of Labour representatives will be a necessity for the work of the new House of Commons. Parliament in the future must apply itself to the task of reconstruction or cease to exist. It can nowhere obtain such accurate knowledge of the needs and grievances of the working classes as from members who have been among them during the war and studied the sources of discontent as well as the foundations of loyalty. It is on the conduct of British Labour during the war that British subjects will find their brightest hopes for the future. In their statements of peace terms and in their willingness to bear whatever sacrifices were shown to be necessary none have shown a clearer sense of the justice and the disinterestedness of the national cause. Though they have upheld the hard-won privileges of the trades-unions, the Labour leaders have many times risked unpopularity in order to prevent any interruption of work in dockyards, or factories, or to induce men to give up their immunity from active service. The organisation of the new party is itself reassuring. It includes brain workers as well as manual workers, and consumers as well as producers. Though it has a strong organisation, it is by no means a class party in the sense in which the term is used in this country. The coalition will enter the elections with the prestige of a great victory, and with every claim on the confidence of the country. It may be claimed for the Prime Minister that he has held this confidence in spite of all threats of defeat; that his faculty of quick decision has been of incalculable value, and that he has done as much as any man living to keep the Alliance together. His record and his political ability should ensure the triumph of the coalition. But its prospects cannot be the same in peace as in war. A coalition favours compromise and postponement. It is liable to break up at any moment through the belief of some of its members that their section of the party is not exercising its proper share of influence. Even during the war the varying influences in the coalition have made its treatment of many domestic problems uncertain and unsatisfactory. It may win the elections, but it does not seem likely to be the instrument which will govern England during the new era.

NEED FOR NATIONAL UNITY.

Theorists and faddists may delight to speculate upon the result of hurling our politics into the hotchpotch of electioneering confusion. The prospect remains, however, that whilst this or that party may be split, or this or that section may gain representation, the extremist Labour section will stand four-square. It will resist all attempts to rob it of the prize it is seeking—revolutionary Government and the spoils for the victors. One glance at the circumstances which brought the National party into existence will be sufficient to show the need for its continuance at least another three or four years. We were called upon to share the burden of a world struggle for liberty. The trumpet blast of war had rallied Australia to the cause for which the other democracies of the world had drawn the sword. One section of the community stood out. Its units said in effect that they did not believe it was necessary to fight the Germans to save democracy. The people of Australia turned them down and gave into the hands of the National party the control of their destinies during the war period. Now that the war has been practically won and the world "made safe for democracy," it would appear that some are prepared to hand over the control of our destiny to those who preach revolution and who would tear down the very things for the preservation of which the best blood of the democracies of the world has been spilt. The political world is confused with the establishment of a variety of organisations. Some are avowedly political; others are professedly non-political. Yet all, apparently, on the Nationalist side are imbued with the idea that Australia must be saved from revolution. The great aim is one worthy of the support of every sober-minded, patriotic citizen. The only question is whether the methods of seeking it will not actually defeat it. "Peace hath its victories no less renowned than war." The predominant need is to vanquish this insidious foe which seeks to overthrow society and plunge Australia into the abyss.

As far as New South Wales is concerned much will depend upon the way in which Ministers meet what may prove to be a crisis. To adopt the attitude that the malcontents are entirely unreasonable, have no legitimate cause of complaint, and are actuated by motives that will not stand investigation, will be fatal. There is a good deal about the policy and the general administration of the National party which calls for honest criticism. And honest criticism is the function of friends, not of enemies. On a number of occasions during the war we have drawn attention to what appeared to be a policy of drift, when a vigorous, business-like control was obviously the right course. Now that the problems of peace in the restoration of our industrial activities, the repatriation of our soldiers, and the effective recognition of the sacrifices made by our people demand immediate attention, it is impossible to stress too much the need for adopting and prosecuting sound business methods in all State departments, under strong and independent leadership. Whether there is anything radically wrong with the administration of the last few years or not, the general public has that conviction. The reports of two recent inquiries by Royal Commissioners—those of Mr. Blacket (abattoirs), and of Mr. Allard (Public Service)—have served to strengthen that idea. To create further unrest there are the Auditor-General's strictures on one or two State enterprises, and the recent declaration by the Premier that another big policy of public works expenditure is to be entered upon. In these times, which every student of politics recognises to be critical in the extreme, the general public look for two things—stable Government and strong leadership. We believe that these things can be achieved easily if an earnest attempt is made to bring about real, solid, national unity. We believe the public will never contemplate the alternative of Labour extremism if it is offered such an assurance.

Large problems cannot be tackled and solved without great effort and considerable expenditure. But it must be insisted that, whatever expenditure is required shall be scrutinised with the utmost possible care and by the employment of the keenest business acumen of the State. Just as the labourer is granted the right to demand a fair day's pay, so must the Government of the country be entitled to demand a fair day's work. All over the country there are important public works which have been held up because of the stringency of a money market closed by the war. These, it is obvious, must be completed as soon as the way is fairly open. But there should be an absolute guarantee that the money which the general taxpayer has to provide shall be spent with scrupulous care, and with the same due regard to economy and efficiency as is exercised in the private concerns of business men. The policy of borrow and spend, always with an eye to political prestige and with a vote-catching aim, must be abandoned if public confidence is to be restored and the interests of the general taxpayers are to be genuinely safeguarded. These requirements having been met, there need be no hesitation in recommending the National party of the State for a further lease of power. And it is with a recognition of the clamant need for better methods that we draw attention to the possibility of a schism in our ranks which will make a present of the Treasury benches in the next Parliament to the revolutionary extremists.

PERSONAL.

VICE-REGAL.

Lady Davidson yesterday afternoon presided at a thanksgiving service of soldiers' wives and mothers in the Town Hall.

Sir Hamilton Goold-Adams, Governor of Queensland, and Lady Adams, arrived in Broken Hill yesterday and spent the day on the mines. They are staying at Mr. C. D. Delprat's residence.

News has been received by cable that Lieutenant-Colonel H. W. Lloyd, C.M.G., D.S.O., has been promoted to Brigadier-General of the 5th Divisional Artillery. Brigadier-General Lloyd left Sydney with the 1st Australian Division in October, 1914.

Major Thos. Henley, M.L.A., a Commissioner for the Australian Comforts Fund in London, in the course of a cable message to Alderman Whipp, Mayor of Burwood, says that it is his intention to remain with the troops throughout the winter, and probably until June next. Referring to the signing of the armistice he says, "May Australian democracy prove worthy of it."

A private cable message has been received intimating that the late Captain William Shepheard Laidley has been awarded the Military Cross for "bravery in action on August 10." Captain Laidley was attached to the 1st Division Australian Field Artillery, and died of wounds on August 22.

Dr. Alfred Burne, of Kinellan, Waverley, has received information that his son, Harry H. A. Burne, M.C., a young Australian artist who enlisted as a private in the Royal Horse Guards on the outbreak of the war, has won promotion through all ranks, and has been gazetted a major in the Royal Field Artillery.

Mr. and Mrs. Th. E. Stufkens have arrived here from Bandoeng, Java, at which city, the chief military centre of the Dutch administration, the former is editor-in-chief of the "Preangerbode" ("The News-messenger"). Mr. Stufkens, who left Rotterdam eight years ago, is now realising a long-cherished wish to enjoy a brief holiday in Melbourne and Sydney.

INVALID SOLDIERS.

ARRIVING TO-DAY.

Another contingent of invalid soldiers will arrive this morning by two special trains from Melbourne, and friends and relations who have tickets marked "Y" from the staff officer for invalids will be admitted to the Anzac Buffet at 10 a.m. to meet the New South Wales men. The names of cot cases will be posted at the buffet as soon as the train arrives, and relations may see them at the hospital.

The Queenslanders will remain on the station, where their relations may see them on the platform. They will leave by a special train at 10.23 a.m., after morning tea.

The Voluntary Aids on duty will be:—Meeting trains: Kensington V.A.D. Anzac Buffet: Public Service V.A.D. Tea on station for Queenslanders: Abbotsford V.A.D. Trains Albury to Sydney: Marrickville Men's V.A.D. Train Sydney to Brisbane: Marrickville Men's V.A.D.

Motor cars numbered on the Red Cross register from 347 to 468 are required to be at the Chalmers-street entrance to the Railway Station at 9.40 a.m. to-day.

The honorary organiser of strong posts, Mr. Downs Johnstone, announces that the procession, headed by the Headquarters A.I.F. Military Band, will leave Eddy-avenue at 10.15 a.m., and proceed via Rawson-place, George-street, Martin-place, Moore-street, Castlereagh-street, Bligh-street, and Bent-street, entering the Domain in Macquarie-street for the Anzac Buffet.

Strong post committees are requested to assemble in full force to give the men a hearty reception. Owners of public buildings and business houses are requested to decorate and beflag their premises as usual.

ST. ANDREW'S.

JUBILEE CELEBRATION.

The jubilee of the opening and consecration of St. Andrew's Cathedral will be celebrated this week. The original foundation-stone was laid by Governor Macquarie in 1819, but it was not until 50 years later that the building, completed after many interruptions and difficulties, was opened and consecrated by Bishop Barker on November 30, 1868.

In connection with the jubilee there will be a celebration of the Holy Communion on Friday at 11 a.m. This service will be followed by a luncheon in the Chapter-house, to which members of Synod and leading Churchmen have been invited.

His Excellency the Governor will be present, and the Archbishop will preside. A festival evensong with combined choirs will be rendered at 7.30 p.m. The festival will be continued the following Sunday.

THE NIAGARA OUTBREAK.

A LESSON FROM NEW ZEALAND.

(By FORESTER CLARKE.)

AUCKLAND, Nov. 13.

Australia has acted wisely in taking precautions against an influenza epidemic such as New Zealand is endeavouring to master at this moment. Had the New Zealand authorities taken the disease in hand from its beginning much suffering and loss of life would assuredly have been spared. Take just one incident:—When the R.M.S. Niagara arrived from Vancouver, with the New Zealand Ministerial party aboard, it was learned that a large number of passengers and crew were suffering from the influenza. Twenty-six of the worst cases were taken to the Auckland Public Hospital—one patient had died on the voyage, two or three more died at the hospital. The other passengers were allowed absolute freedom to travel how and where they pleased. The Niagara was delayed here, not because of the influenza directly, but because the wharf labourers were too wise to handle the cargo.

Meanwhile, the nurses who had attended the Niagara patients in hospital contracted the disease—two or three of them dying. The influenza spread very rapidly throughout the hospital, until now over 100 nurses are down with it; also the wounded soldiers in the military annexe of the public hospital have contracted the disease, there being about 80 of them affected now. Thousands of people in Auckland are suffering from the epidemic, and up to the present moment there have been close on 300 deaths from direct influenza, besides many more dying from the after-effects of the disease. The health authorities are manfully endeavouring to overtake the results of their former laxity. All houses of amusement, schools, Sunday-schools, every and any place where people might congregate being closed. To-day the hotels are to be closed. Race meetings are forbidden. Every factory and business place has been closed for a few days at the week-end in order to fumigate thoroughly.

The whole commerce of the city has been disorganised; shipping has been delayed throughout the whole of New Zealand; reinforcements have had to be held back—very many of the soldiers are suffering from the complaint in the New Zealand military camps. In fact, without being an alarmist whatever, one can truthfully say that the disease has New Zealand fairly in its grip. It is being aided and abetted by the ill-favoured depressing barometric conditions which have obtained for some weeks past.

Auckland was hampered in the first rush of the epidemic by lack of medical men and of hospital accommodation. Whole families were down, and were unable to procure medical help. Chemists were rushed off their feet. The authorities took the matter in hand, procured medical men from the camps, medical students from the south; set up committees, cut the city and suburbs into groups, with a committee to act; called for men and women volunteer workers; arranged soup kitchens; used the boy scouts to carry soup and food to stricken families; installed inhaling chambers throughout the city—in fact, they are putting in the "nine stitches" now, but they are doing it thoroughly.

On Friday last hundreds of men and women dragged themselves to their work in the city, that tired feeling, together with the fact that many of them had been nursing members of their family during the night, giving them a jaded appearance. Shortly afterwards the news announcing the complete surrender of the Germans came through. It was as though an electric wave had swept through the town. Tired faces became joyful; tired limbs danced with joy; bells clanged; whistles screeched; motor horns pom-pomed; men and women, boys and girls rushed up the street ringing cow bells, battering tins; processions were formed, bands were hastily improvised, and tunes were played—just from excessive joy. Auckland entirely forgot itself for once. Even the sad-hearted, who were mourning for their sons and brothers who had fought and died for the great cause, felt a great thrill of pride that victory was ours at last. Tramway men ran their cars to the sheds and took a holiday.

Towards evening, men, women, and children, many of whom were only just convalescent, poured into the main streets, many having to walk long distances. Before long the noise became a joyful pandemonium—brass bands, bagpipes, tin cans, drums, bugles, dust-bin lids whacked with sticks, crackers in every variety. Many of the business places advertised that they would not reopen until Tuesday on account of peace celebrations. It was a glorious time. Old and young reluctantly dragged themselves home after hours of excitement—tired, but happy in the blessed thought of peace. Next morning they grinned sheepishly into each others faces and—resumed work.

During the celebrations many people contracted the disease. The whole relief work of the medical authorities was greatly disorganised and hampered, many of the serious cases becoming worse through shock and noise. Thus it came about that when the surrender of the enemy was announced early yesterday morning the whole town was silent, or nearly so. No guns were fired, no whistles, no bells. Flags were flown, and most of the Government places closed for the day—also some business places closed—otherwise our beautiful city was still and quiet. But deep in our hearts there was joy for the peace, but sadness for all the sorrow around. To-day two special trains are being run out to a suburban cemetery to carry the victims of the influenza epidemic, who have been awaiting burial for days on account of shortage of undertakers to do the work.

It is a sad and anxious time for New Zealand, just at the time when she had planned for festivities. The disease will, no doubt, die down when the weather conditions improve, but in the meanwhile Australia would do well not to relax her watchful eye.

PUBLIC SERVICE.

ROYAL COMMISSIONER'S REPORT.

Last night the Premier, without comment, presented to Parliament the interim report of Mr. G. Mason Allard, Royal Commissioner of Inquiry into the administration and general working of the Public Service of New South Wales.

A summary of this document was published in the "Herald" of November 11 and 12. The report itself, though it deals with only section 1 and part of section 4 of the scope of the Commission, occupies 600 printed pages of evidence taken on oath, and over 200 typewritten pages of comment and review by the Commissioner.

It is stated that a detailed report upon the Lands Department will be submitted within a week. Reports upon other departments; upon the system of remuneration; as to the sufficiency or otherwise of the number of officers; as to the work entailed upon Ministers of the Crown, and generally as to the efficiency or otherwise of the Public Service, are held over until the Commissioner has investigated all branches of the service.

In all probability the reply of the members of the Public Service Board to the strong strictures and drastic recommendations made by the Royal Commissioner in regard to the board will be presented to Parliament later this week.

ENGINEERS IN ENGLAND.

APPLICATION TO MINISTER.

Mr. Oscar Bryant, secretary to the District Council of the Australasian Society of Engineers, has written to Mr. Pearce, Minister for Defence, asking that immediate consideration be given to the return of the men who have been making munitions in England. Mr. Bryant pointed out that many members of the society had volunteered for munition making, and left their wives and families behind them.

THE SYDNEY MAIL.

The reception of the Anzacs who arrived in Sydney on Sunday, and the public welcome given them on Monday are excellently illustrated in this week's "Mail," and there is published an interesting illustrated article describing what New South Wales is doing in connection with the establishment and development of soldiers' settlements in the State. Prominence is given a suggestion by a contributor to the effect that the beautiful Geehi Valley (said to be the "noblest region in all Australia"), at the foot of Mount Kosciusko, should be proclaimed a national park as an enduring A.I.F. memorial. There are some beautiful photographs of the Geehi scenery. The public welcome at Orange to Surgeon-General Sir Neville Howse, V.C., K.C.B., a thanksgiving service at Wingham, and armistice celebrations at Wellington are depicted. The visit of Dominion journalists to the Western front is the subject of a couple of large pictures; there is a page in connection with the surrender of the German fleet; the Public school sports at the Sydney Cricket Ground are illustrated; and two of the papers read at the conference of primary producers are printed—that by Mr. M'Innes, on the dairying industry, and that by Mr. Somer, dealing with the question of mixed farming.

FLAGS!

BUT NO FLAGGING.

(By ETHEL TURNER.)

War has familiarised all of us with vast numbers; thousands, tens of thousands, hundreds of thousands—the words trip off our tongues nowadays as lightly as erstwhile the modest units, and tens, and hundreds. But even so, who shall compute for us the number of flags big and little bought, since swiftly across the sea came the winged victory? Flags! The harbour went mad with them; against the blue screen of sky and water they gave the brilliant and dazzling effect produced by that ingenious magic lantern arrangement in which designs are painted in vivid colour on two circular glasses and the glasses made to rotate in opposite directions.

Flags! The lines of the stiffest business buildings were broken with them; the most sullen-faced warehouses were all a-dimple and a-colour with the lovely emblems. The trams, the trains, the motor cars, the very horses and carts wore them. Like flashes of joyous flame they spread to the suburbs and then, crackling over the miles, to the country, and on and on to the far bush. Many a blue shirt and red petticoat were recklessly ripped in pieces in the far bush that the flag of England might instantly wave from the housetop. Flags! The very babies lulled themselves contentedly to sleep in their cradles with little Union Jacks and Southern Crosses, and Tricolours and Stars and Stripes, dangling from the canopies. That sort of flagging was the easiest thing in the world; we did it simply because we could not help doing it. We followed the line of the least resistance.

But there is a kind of flagging that we have to guard against just now with all our might—the "flagging" derived from the German word "flacken," to become languid, to lose interest, to droop. Let us expurgate this word at once from our vocabulary; let us do it now, for it is an insidious and specious foe, whispering in our ear that we have worked pretty well all these four years and may rest on our oars now and start to enjoy ourselves in our old fashion. Yes; let us do more than expurgate this ugly word of enemy origin; let us faithfully wring its neck and declare that there is only one meaning to the word. Everyone of us who has bought a flag in the last pregnant fortnight and has worn it or borne it or flown it from the housetop, let us tell ourselves that the act has committed us individually to something—and that "to flag" means "not to flag."

We are going to "carry on;" we are going to help, each in our own way, tidy up the world again, and perhaps make a better place of it than it has ever been yet; we are going to remember, faithfully and first of all, every piece of public work we undertake for men, living and dead, who made it possible for us to have those days of furious flag-flying.

Here is our first big chance to show our mettle. Here is War Chest Day close at hand—the day, most particularly of all days, the men's own day. The flags flying from our houses will not keep them in the least degree warm this final winter in France; but our money and our most unselfish individual efforts will do this. Let us show them that Australia means something when she fills the air with waving colour—that she loyally recognises the fact that "to flag" means "not to flag."

CHILDREN'S TAX.

MERRY-GO-ROUNDS AND SWING BOATS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Doubt having been expressed as to whether certain amusements are subject to the new rates of entertainment tax, the Commissioner of Taxation stated to-day that the tax was chargeable in respect of such entertainments as "Merry-go-rounds," "scenic railways," "captive aeroplanes," "catherine wheels," "ocean waves," "swing boats," "helter-skelters," and other amusement of this kind. The amount of tax payable was 1d for each payment made by each person participating in the amusement.

TAX ON SWIMMING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Many will be amazed to notice in to-day's "Herald" that the Federal Government includes swimming baths in the category of "amusements" upon which a tax is to be levied in future. Surely swimming should be regarded from the point of view of public health, especially at the present time, when medical authorities are advising people to indulge in sea-bathing in order to guard against the influenza menace. But, irrespective of this, there are other cogent reasons why nothing should be done to discourage the widest possible use of the available swimming baths around Sydney. Our Public schools have long since been displaying a commendable activity in providing opportunities and facilities to enable their pupils to learn to swim. Are their efforts to be discouraged by the imposition of a tax which will practically render impossible the periodical visits of school children and their teachers to the baths for this purpose? Again, every swimmer knows that at the present time a great number of wounded soldiers regularly visit the baths in accordance with the instructions of their medical advisers. Are these also to be penalised by the new tax? There is also an element of danger in the Federal Government's proposition, at least so far as Sydney is concerned, as it will doubtless force many of the poorer children to take their dip in the open harbour. Although many may be contemptuous of the risk of sharks, the fatalities of the past are proof of the existence of the danger. It will be surprising if the public accepts calmly this attempt of the Federal Government to place a premium upon cleanliness. There is surely something anomalous in an act of legislation which classifies public swimming baths with such things as "slippery dips," "swing boats," and "slot picture machines."

I am, etc.,

HIGH RENTS.

ALLEGED BOYCOTT IN TIMBER TRADE.

NOTICE TO SLUM TENANTS.

The investigation by the Interstate Commission regarding house rents was continued by Mr. Piddington, K.C., yesterday.

Mr. William Morby, president of the Sydney Labour Council, gave evidence as to the dilapidated condition of certain dwellings in the city, and suggested that all dwellings under a given rental, say 15/ per week, should be registered in order to guard against the development of slum areas. He proposed that such properties should be registered every one or two years, and certificates should be given where the properties were habitable and in godo sanitary condition. The rents should be fixed after inspection.

Evidence relating to timber prices was given by Edward Brush, a teamster. He said that at one time he owned a sawmill on the North Coast, but was starved out. His agent in Sydney told him that he could not sell the timber because he was not a member of the vend. When a contractor got hardwood from him and went to other merchants for soft wood, nails, or iron, the latter told him to get them where he got his hardwood. Further evidence as to the alleged boycott was taken in private.

Mr. S. P. Dart, an estate agent, supplemented evidence previously given before the commission with regard to alleged overcrowding in the city. He said that he had received a communication from the town clerk asking for full particulars and addresses of the cases referred to by the witness. These witnesses had declined to supply, as, from the tone of the letter, he gathered that it was the intention of the municipal authorities to send notices to quit upon the persons concerned under the ordinance requiring a certain number of cubic feet per person. Under instructions, which he understood had been issued by the Lord Mayor, officers of the City Council were making a house to house inspection of the areas in which overcrowding had been alleged, and the previous day two families in a street to which he (witness) had referred had received from the council notices to quit within seven days. Failure to comply with this involved liability to a penalty of £10 upon the tenant. In these particular houses there were only three rooms and a kitchen; nine persons lived in each of the houses. They were situated in Albion-street, and the rental was 11/6 per week. The agent for the terrace in which they were was the Perpetual Trustee Company. The sleeping accommodation in one of the houses was 10ft 1in by 8ft 2in, and in the other 8ft 7in by 8ft 10in.

The commission adjourned until 10.30 a.m. to-day.

EXHAUSTED.

GERMANY'S GRAVE PLIGHT.

POLITICAL DIVISIONS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.

Mr. Arno Doschfleurot, correspondent of the "New York Times," cabling from Berlin states: The strongest impression I get on coming into Germany is that the country expects certain famine unless her former enemies come to her aid. The trains are not heated, and are without lights. The trams in Berlin are muddy and shabby. A few loungers can be seen in the vast empty cafes. Almost all traffic in the streets consists of worn-out soldiers homeward bound. The general impression is one of prolonged misery, unequalled by what I have seen during the war. Even in Russia, except for the organised starvation of the Bourgeoisie, there was no such misery. Germany has reached the absolute limit and lies exhausted. The issue now is between a democratic constituent assembly and a proletariat Soviet Government. Despite the demand for action throughout the nation the present Government has not yet decided which form to adopt.

According to its opponents the Government leans towards the Soviet organisation. The issue is so widely understood that soldiers en route from France to Berlin telegraph every day demanding a constituent assembly. The Majority Socialists, who are fighting for a constituent assembly are not as active as formerly. The Minority Socialists are sufficiently strong to prevent the present Government taking definite action. I have been struck with the absence of rifles in the streets which compares favourably with the conditions in Russia at the beginning of the revolution.

Mr. Doschfleurot, who cables from Berlin via Copenhagen, interviewed Phillipp Schediemann (the leader of the Majority Socialists), who said: The German National Assembly will probably be called in February. We would call it sooner if it was technically possible, in order that the whole world may understand and appreciate our determined and sincere purpose to establish a democracy in Germany. We need several weeks to register voters and construct election machinery. Therefore we are unable to fix a date for the National Assembly. I understand why the rest of the world doubt our ability to carry out our plan for a national assembly, but only a national catastrophe such as famine can prevent it. Ninety-five per cent. of the German people clamour for a constitutional assembly. Only a few small groups wish for class rule. Bolshevism will not come to Germany if work and food are obtainable. Germany's temper is not Bolshevistic, but famine may destroy a resistance which already has been weakened seriously. If Germany becomes Bolshevistic it would constitute a menace to other lands. This danger can be averted if we have food. If America wishes to help Germany to establish herself as a firm democracy, and avoid proletarianism or autocracy, then you must give us food immediately."

PRESIDENT WILSON WANTED.

The Berlin correspondent of the "New York Times" learns from a reliable source that influential circles in Germany are urging the Government to invite President Wilson to visit Germany, or some German port.

"STOLEN PROPERTY."

According to a Paris message, the revolutionary guard met Marshal von Mackensen on his arrival at Berlin, and confiscated from him nearly £3,500,000, also food supplies which he and his staff officers had brought from Roumania for their families. The guard acted by order of the revolutionary committee, because it believed the money to be stolen property.

AUSTRIA NEEDS HELP

The ex-Emperor Charles stated in an interview with an American news agency that the pressing need of Austria was help from the United States. The danger of Bolshevism is growing serious. Not a single day ought to be lost by the Allies in obtaining food for the population. The suffering is certain to be very great within a few weeks. The former Government did its best, but food was unprocurable. If coal is not procured, disorders in Vienna are certain. Bolshevism started in Russia because of lack of food. It is not to the interest of the Allies to allow Bolshevism to spread over Austria also. Regarding the future, the ex-Emperor said he could only repeat that he did his duty, and hoped the future would bring peace and happier days, also a better understanding amongst all peoples. The ex-Emperor did not show any bitterness against the Allies.

ITALIANS AT INNSBRUCK.

A Rome message says the Italians have occupied Innsbruck and Landech (Austrian Tyrol). They were enthusiastically received by the people, who are hoping that they will restore order and save them from famine.

BRITISH POLITICS.

The new Parliament assembles on January 21.

A number of Liberal associations have refused to accept the candidates recommended by the Coalition whips. This attitude apparently is spreading.

THE EX-KAISER.

MAY BE EXTRADITED.

A Paris report says the French Government has been legally advised that Holland is entitled to order the ex-Kaiser's extradition, or alternatively, if he has not abdicated, he is not entitled to claim sanctuary as a civilian.

CONTROL OF THE AIR.

The Civil Aerial Transport Committee recommends the immediate summoning of an International Conference to draft aerial regulations. The committee insists that legislation should assert the sovereignty and jurisdiction of the Crown over the air superincumbent in all parts of the British dominions and territorial waters, also to safeguard civilian rights against falling aeroplanes. There was a general disposition to leave the commercial exploitation of the air to private enterprise.

AMERICAN PRESIDENCY.

It is reported from Washington that a campaign for the election of General Pershing as American President in 1920 has been started in Ohio, where a Republican league for that object has been formed.

JOY IN STRASSBURG.

A telegram from Paris states that 300,000 people deliriously acclaimed General Gouraud on his entry into Strassburg. General Gouraud, in a proclamation, lauded the town's unshaken fidelity to France, despite the odious German yoke. "France," he said "takes to her heart her lost child."

PORT OF KINGSTON.

The Jamaica correspondent of the "New York Times" says the Governor has stated that it is intended to make Kingston a free port. It is understood that the Imperial and Australian Governments propose to make Kingston a port of call for Australian ships sailing via the Panama Canal. The docking facilities will be improved.

THE ARMISTICE.

DAILY DISCUSSIONS.

LONDON, Nov. 25.

The "Echo de Paris" says there is a daily meeting in Spa, between French, British, and German armistice delegates. The discussions are often lively. General Minterfeldt, the German delegate, angrily strikes the table when the Allied delegates refuse to yield to the German demands.

GERMAN NAVY.

An officer on the battle cruiser Derfflinger (which with others of the German navy was surrendered to the British), said: "This is deplorable. It will ruin the German navy. It had not the traditions to live up to like the British navy, and now it has only a dishonourable record. No man will want to serve in a disgraced service."

The spot where the German submarines are moored at Harwich is now known as "U-Boat Avenue." It is over a mile long.

BRITISH BOUND FOR KIEL.

The advance guard of a small British fleet bound for Kiel sailed this morning. It consists of a flotilla of minesweepers to clear a passage for a squadron.

The minesweepers working to Kiel are called the "hunt" class, being named after famous packs—Muskerry, Pytchley, Garth, and Cottesmore, etc.

PEACE CONFERENCE.

The "Echo de Paris" says it is understood the preliminary peace conference will be held in Paris, instead of at Versailles.

A message from Washington says that Irish-American societies are combining to present a petition to President Wilson asking him to use his influence at the peace conference in favour of the political freedom of Ireland. The Roman Catholic clergy are presenting their own petition on similar lines.

WAR PRISONERS.

ILL-FED AUSTRALIANS.

A hundred and twenty Australian prisoners of war have arrived from France. They looked weak compared with those from Holland. One stated that the Germans gave them something that looked like shark, which smelt horribly. They usually had mangolds and beet for dinner. On occasions a bucket and a half of horse beans had to suffice for dinner for 150 men.

HOLLAND.

QUESTION OF NEUTRALITY.

A Paris message says it is semi-officially denied that the Entente Ministers at the Hague agreed to the passage of German troops through Limburg.

The "Matin," commenting on the French Government's reply to the Dutch Note thereanent, says: "The sojourn in Holland of the Kaiser and the Crown Prince imposes upon Dutch neutrality a more scrupulous degree of prudence than other countries, but unfortunately this has not been shown. On the contrary, the Hague Cabinet, in addition to approving of the German retreat through Limburg, allowed torpedo boats interned in Dutch ports to be towed to Germany through Dutch waters; also, the Dutch Foreign Minister pleaded Germany's cause, and asked for an amelioration of the armistice. All these inconsistencies occurred within a few days." The "Matin" concludes: "The French Note is a preliminary warning."

RUSSIA.

Despatches from Vladivostock say that General Semenoff, the Cossack leader, whose forces have been operating against the Bolsheviks from Manchuria, has interrupted telegraphic communication between Omsk and Vladivostock. He has asserted his jurisdiction over the Amir, Usuli, and Trans-Baikal district, and established his headquarters at Chita.

NON-FERROUS METALS.

The Ministry of Munitions will release stocks of non-ferrous metals as they become available for general industrial purposes, without special priority of permits. The price of electrolytic copper is £137 per ton; spelter (ordinary) £57, and refined £75; aluminium, £200; soft pig lead, £40; and antimony, £50.

WAR CHEST DAY.

Yesterday the honorary treasurers of War Chest Day received the third donation of £1000. This came from the Bank of New South Wales, and when the figures for the day were finally made up, it was found that £4000 had been banked, bringing the subscriptions up to over £18,000.

The hon. treasurers announce the receipt of the following additional subscriptions:—

STEAMER WESTMORELAND TORPEDOED.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Members of the crew of a steamer which has arrived in Melbourne state that the Federal Shire liner Westmoreland was torpedoed in the Mediterranean recently. She was a steel twin-screw steamer of 7500 tons register.

NOT GUILTY.

CAPETOWN, Nov. 25.

The trial of Percy Dargin, an Australian, for the murder of a fellow bank clerk named Glanville, was concluded this morning, after six days' hearing. The Judge remarked that the evidence did not establish that Dargin was guilty of the crime, therefore he was entitled to a verdict of not guilty. Dargin and his wife were cheered by the crowds outside the court.

SOLDIERS' CLUB.

The trustees of the Soldiers' Club, 426 George-street, announce that the club will be open for inspection by the public from next Wednesday to Saturday, from 2 to 5 p.m. Friends and benefactors of the club are asked to inspect the renovations and improvements, and use made generally of the money generously subscribed for Violet Day in June last.

The club is sending out an S.O.S. for literature. The supply of magazines and periodicals having greatly diminished they would be glad of donations of illustrated papers and magazines of all descriptions, this being a form of recreation much enjoyed by the men. Gifts of flowers are always acceptable, and appreciated by the soldiers.

COST OF LIVING.

The inquiry by the Board of Trade into the cost of living for female workers was concluded yesterday. The board reserved its decision.

TURKEY.

CONTROL BY ALLIES.

LONDON, Nov. 25.

The sweeping of the Bosphorus has been completed, and the British and French vessels have gone to various ports in the Black Sea.

A Paris message states that a British regiment in Pera disarmed the last German contingent in Constantinople. The Allies will shortly assume control of the Turkish Customs.

FUGITIVES IN GERMANY.

A Rotterdam message says the "Berliner Tageblatt" declares that Enver Pasha and other Turkish fugitives will not be extradited unless direct complicity in the Armenian trocities is proved. One aim of new Germany is to afford a sanctuary for political fugitives.

BRITAIN'S SOLDIERS.

MAY EXTEND SERVICE FOR FOUR YEARS.

The War Office announces that, with a view to providing men for oversea garrisons and necessary reserves at home, soldiers may extend their periods of service for two, three, or four years, entitling them to bounties of £20, £40, and £50, respectively.

GERMAN PLOT.

ORIGIN OF THE WAR.

LONDON, Nov. 25.

A Paris message says the Bavarian official documents which have been published clearly prove that Germany instigated Austria to provoke war. Everything was so arranged that Germany could show surprise to the outside world at the turn events took. Nevertheless Germany planned to violate Belgium's neutrality and to crumple France within a month. The newspapers hotly comment on the revelation of the plot.

GENERAL CABLE NEWS.

The censorship of foreign cablegrams will continue until peace is concluded.

Thirty American submarine chasers have quitted Queenstown, bound for home.

The Mauretania has resumed her regular passenger sailings.

The British Government has purchased New Zealand's butter output for two seasons at 181/ f.o.b.

The Duke of Connaught, accompanied by Princess Patricia, opened the Colonial Artists' Exhibition at the Royal Academy. He said the society was fortunate in securing the loan of the collection of war pictures by Australian artists, which the Commonwealth had purchased. Mr. Andrew Fisher (High Commissioner) thanked the Duke of Connaught for the interest he had taken in the exhibition.

SHIPWRECKED SAILORS.

CAPTAIN CHUGG'S RETURN.

Among the passengers who yesterday hurried down the gangway from the steamer Manuka, just released from quarantine, were two young men, obviously sailors. One of them jealously carried two curiously woven fans, with a fringe of crimson.

"Ah," remarked a man who knows the Pacific, "he's been in Manihiki"—and so it proved. Manihiki, an island of the Cook Group, is famous for its fans. The two men were A. Cameron, ship's carpenter, and J. Bell, able seaman, and a third, who presently joined them and began to instruct them how to find their way to the Melbourne express, was Captain Richard Chugg. They were the missing survivors of the wrecked barque John Murray, and for three months they were lost among the islands of Eastern Polynesia.

It will be remembered that the John Murray was wrecked on Malden Island over four months ago, and that the captain, in an open boat, succeeded in reaching Fanning Island. As a result a vessel was able to visit Malden Island and rescue the survivors before any serious accident befel them, although they were already suffering from lack of food. But four men were missing.

Soon after the captain set out to the northward toward Fanning Island, Captain Chugg and the two men, with a native, started in another boat to the southward, in the direction of Rarotonga or Tahiti. The departure from Malden Island was delayed, owing to an accident in launching the boat. Some days were lost in effecting repairs, but on July 27 they set out. The boat was only 23 feet long, with a beam of seven feet.

They made good progress for a little while, under sail, and then the weather became very stormy, and they were most severely buffeted. The boat leaked somewhat, and considerable water broke over the gunwale. To cap their danger and discomfort, the pump broke. Thereafter, one of the four men had to be constantly baling. Fortunately, the weather improved, and they kept on towards the south-west.

At dawn on August 1 they sighted land right ahead, and within a few hours they entered the famous harbour of Penrhyn Island —90 square miles of water surrounded by a coral reef and a few inhabitable islets. When the voyagers approached one of the islets they caused the utmost consternation among the native community, which assumed they were Germans. The women and children fled into the bush, and the men prepared to do battle. But when they ascertained that the arrivals were merely shipwrecked men seeking help, they displayed the utmost hospitality. The New Zealand resident agent (the Cook Islands are administered by New Zealand) came over from another islet, and took charge of them. They were comfortably maintained on the island for several weeks, when they were picked up by a trading schooner and taken, via Manihiki and Aitutaki, to Rarotonga. They arrived there on October 25, and their arrival was announced only a few hours before a steamer was due to leave Melbourne to search for them.

BRAN AND POLLARD.

An inquiry was held yesterday before the Commonwealth Prices Commissioner (Mr. R. King), Mr. Marcus Clark, and members of the advisory board, into the price of bran and pollard. Witnesses from the different sections of the trade, including millers, wholesale distributers, retail distributers, pig and poultry farmers, were examined. Representatives from the country milk suppliers were also in attendance.

The evidence showed that there was a distinct shortage of bran and pollard. The chief cause, it was stated, was the drought, which had brought about a large increase in the price of lucerne hay and other chaffs. In consequence of its comparatively low price bran was being much more freely used for food. Further, owing to the substantial growth of poultry-raising in the past few years there was now a greater demand for bran and pollard.

The inquiry was concluded.

DEATH OF MR. G. H. MOXHAM.

The death occurred yesterday in a private hospital, as a result of a collapse following upon an operation, of Mr. George H. Moxham, principal of the produce broking firm of Messrs. George H. Moxham and Co., of Mountain-street, and late of Circular Quay. The deceased had been actively connected with the Sydney market for the past forty years. He was associated with Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Ltd., for several years, and later with Messrs. J. H. Geddes and Co. and the Pastoral Finance Association, Ltd., commencing business on his own account as a produce selling broker in 1896. The deceased, who was in his 57th year, has left a widow and grown-up family. The funeral will take place at the Waverley Cemetery this afternoon.

SOLDIERS' WIVES.

LONDON, Nov. 25.

The British Government will provide a free passage to the Dominions for wives and families of colonial and Dominion residents who joined the army, navy, or air force. Passages will be available before the conclusion of peace, after which practically all available shipping will be needed for the repatriation of the Dominion forces. The Government realises that the re-establishment of normal conditions in the Dominions is one of the nation's first considerations.

DEATH OF C. E. M'LEOD.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The death occurred to-day of Charles E. M'Leod, the international cricketer.

WAR NOTES.

STRASSBURG.

Since the signing of the armistice removed the last trace of opposition to the Allied advance towards the Rhine, the occupation of many towns of importance has passed almost without notice. There have been a few notable exceptions to this rule, such as Antwerp, Metz, Brussels, and to-day we are told of the memorable entry into Strassburg of General Gouraud. Strassburg, the capital of Alsace, has always been regarded as a place of the utmost strategical importance. Its original name, "Argentoratum," reveals its Celtic origin, but it was in the hands of the Germanic Triboci as early as the time of Ariovistus. The name Stratisburgum appeared in the sixth century. In the middle ages Strassburg was a powerful free city, and in 1445 it was successfully defended against 50,000 Armagnacs, who invaded Alsace under the Dauphin of France. Louis XIV. secured the city for France in 1681, and France was confirmed in its possession by the Peace of Ryswyck in 1697. At the salon of M. de Deitrich, Mayor of Strassburg, was sung, in April, 1792, the song of "The Army of the Rhine," by Rouget de Lisle, which was eventually immortalised under the name of "The Marseillaise." Strassburg has produced some notable military leaders—Marshals Le Febre, Mouton, and Rapp maintaining in the Napoleonic wars the traditions of Kellerman and Kleber. In 1805 Napoleon stopped at Strassburg prior to the campaign leading up to Austerlitz, and he returned there after the Peace of Presburg. He resided there again in 1809, after the second campaign in Austria. After Napoleon's defeat in 1813, Strassburg was beseiged and the garrison there made a last offensive sortie even after the Allies had entered Paris. After Waterloo, Rapp, at Strassburg, obstinately adhered to the tricolour. In 1848, when there was talk of separating Strassburg from France, M. Kratz, the Mayor, said:—"There is no need for us to make a solemn and public profession of our inviolable devotion to France. France has no doubt of us. She has faith in Alsace. But if Germany still nurses chimerical illusions: if she thinks that the persistence of the German tongue in the heart of our country is a sign of sympathy and attraction towards her, let her disillusion herself. Alsace is as French as Brittany. . . . and it is her wish to remain so." The siege of Strassburg in 1870 began on August 13, and the bombardment on August 18. After a determined resistance the town capitulated to the Prussians on September 27. The cathedrals and many of the most prominent buildings were damaged by the bombardment, and some of the suburbs were destroyed by fire.

DISSOLUTION OF GERMAN EMPIRE.

The late rulers of Germany indulged in so much political trickery and camouflage during their regime that it is not surprising that many people still accept with reserve the reports of sensational political developments in the enemy's country. Some light may be thrown on the confused situation existing at present, however, if we realise what the German Empire actually was. In an article in "Land and Water," entitled "The Word 'Germany,'" Mr. Hilaire Belloc dealt with the probable effect of defeat upon the German Empire as far back as September 26 last. He pointed out that people spoke of "Germany" as though it were an ancient country, like France or England, possessing a strong organic unity, and enjoying what all true nations enjoy, something of the responsibility and affection which is found in an individual. This idea, he pointed out, was completely false. "The German Empire," he added, "is not a nation. It is a large body of the German race organised under the spirit of Prussia, which is partly German in its character and very alien in its strongest features to the general tradition of German civilisation. . . It is the Prussian materialist mood which has produced the horrors of this war, much more than the mere stupidity native to the German. . . Well, when the battle is over and this unpleasant thing has been struck down, the glue which kept together the artificial combination called the German Empire will be dissolved. . . What the Allies will have to deal with when Prussia and her vileness have received their reward will not be the Prussian thing which calls itself the German Empire. It will be the various but similar German peoples. It will be the German Cantons of Switzerland, the Austro-Germans in the Middle Danube; the Southern German States; the Northern Germans of the Baltic Plain; what may also be called in a large view of history, the German tradition. It is worthy of respect, and even were it not worthy of respect, it must be recognised. It is not ephemeral; it is not even what we are fighting. Prussia is what we are fighting. Those who have allowed Prussia to rule them, and who have committed the abominations with which Prussia inspired them, must, of course, suffer for some time the consequences of their misdeeds. But with Prussia defeated in the field they will be disenchanted. They will be at our mercy, it is true, but we have no occasion to exercise anything more than justice against them. It is a Prussia—that is, the State organised for loot—that must and will disappear. For its assertion of existence is victory, and defeat will kill it." Present developments in Europe bear out the accuracy of this forecast.

THE MONARO ELECTION.

A correspondent, who claims a first-hand knowledge of the Monaro electorate, having recently spent considerable time amongst the electors, says that they consist chiefly of small landholders (farmers and graziers), rural workers, etc., with but a small sprinkling of the "Bolshevik." He claims that the administration of the Lands Department is largely responsible for the poor support accorded the National candidate. "Threats by the present Minister for Lands to legislate against the activities of the land agent with a political pull, ended in smoke, while the amending legislation since the time of the aforesaid threats seems to be all in the direction of conferring greater powers on the Minister and his satellites, and lessening the powers of the local land boards. The decision of the local land boards can be always appealed against, and the abrogation of their powers is certainly not in the best interests of the community.

"The prices paid for the settlement of returned soldiers has, in a number of cases, aroused hostile comment from members of public bodies in the localities where the purchased lands were situated. Common business knowledge has not been shown in a number of the purchases, with the result that the incoming soldier settler, who is being allotted portion of same, can hardly be looked on as being 'well settled.'

"By a strange irony the value of land for purposes of conversion from the Crown, seems to have no bearing on similar land acquired for purposes of soldier settlement. This is a matter of common knowledge.

"The method of allotment of holdings to returned soldiers under what is known as 'preferential right' is open to the strongest criticism, as it is only by the applicant making a personal appearance before the board that his qualifications can be gauged. The allotment after an examination of references, etc., by the board sitting in Sydney, has already led to some very unwise allotments, as would be expected from a board arriving at a decision from a perusal of a sheaf of references.

"As the matters referred to above were frequently mentioned during the late contest, I am of the opinion that they represent the opinion of all democrats who have no desire to experience the 'bolshevik' touch in the near future. The placing of all lands administration under the control of a commission, will alone satisfy a large body of the electors in the various electorates, and perhaps prevent an electorate of small landholders repeating the late fiasco."

SYDNEY RAGGED SCHOOLS.

The fifty-eighth report of the Sydney Ragged Schools, which will be presented by the secretary, the Rev. James Buchan, M.A., to the annual meeting at St. James's Hall at 3 o'clock this afternoon, states that a number of former scholars of the various schools have been at the front, and that an honour roll containing the names of 35 former scholars of the Jubilee School is being prepared. Warm meals have been served during the winter months at the schools, and greatly appreciated.

The speakers at to-day's meeting will include the Rev. S. J. Hoban, the Rev. Thos. Tait, M.A., and Archdeacon Boyce. Mr. W. G. Crane will preside.

LATE CABLE NEWS.

VON SANDERS.

DISCUSSES DARDANELLES CAMPAIGN.

BRITISH BRAVE AND CHIVALROUS.

LONDON, Nov. 26.

Mr. Ward Price, telegraphing from Constantinople, said he interviewed General Liman von Sanders, who said he found the British a brave and chivalrous enemy both in the Dardanelles and Palestine. He telegraphed Ludendorff in August that unless he received reinforcements nothing would prevent a debacle. The Turkish weakness was due to sending the available reserves to Azerbaijan, Persia, for the conquest of the Caucasus, despite the German protests.

Discussing British strategy in the Dardanelles, von Sanders said the naval attack on the straits could not have succeeded owing to the mines. "I proposed to flood the straits broadcast with mines," he said. The function of the forts was simply to protect the minefields from interference. If I had been attacked in the Dardanelles I would not have landed at Cape Helles or Anzac, but would have made the principal landing on the coast of Asia Minor, off Tenedos. Such a landing would give a convenient base close at hand, while two days' march would have brought the Allies to the rear of the Dardanelles forts, which can only fire seaward. At the same time, I should have landed on the neck of Gallipoli close to the Bulair lines. So strongly did I expect you to choose these places that when I took command months before the landing I posted two of my six divisions opposite Tenedos, two on the Peninsular, and two at Bulair.

With regard to the Suvla landing, Liman von Sanders said he would have preferred to land between Anzac and Helles, where the Peninsula is narrower, and the Turks could have been attacked from the rear. The landings at Suvla might have succeeded if they had been hard pressed. There were only two battalions of Turkish gendames, two squadrons of cavalry, and two batteries of old guns to oppose it during the first 24 hours. If the British troops had pushed inland with several columns some would have made a good position on the heights. Von Sanders hurried up a division from Bulair by a double enforced march.

Another critical moment was when a push was made for Chunukbair. Liman von Sanders rushed a division from the Asiatic side, which would have been blown to pieces by the British guns if their arrival had been half an hour later. Only three battalions were left on the Asiatic side, where great anxiety prevailed, lest there was a fresh British landing.

It was also touch and go at Kirechkeuy, on the north side of Suvla Bay, where the Allies attacked for three days after landing. Von Sanders expected a withdrawal after Earl Kitchener's visit. He entirely agreed with the wisdom of the decision. The Turks were constantly being reinforced. At the end I had 21 divisions, he said.

The withdrawal, he said, was extremely well carried out. The concealment of devices at Suvla was most effective. Patrols on the last night sighted red flares on the beach and thought for a while that fresh troops were being landed. When the news that the British positions were empty was received von Sanders galloped from headquarters to organise the pursuit, but the Turkish telephones were so bad that he was unsuccessful. The Turks advancing in the fog stumbled on British land mines and had heavy losses. Ninety mines were found in front of a single division. Von Sanders said he saw preparations for the evacuation of Helles, but was unable to guess the date.

CHILE AND PERU.

RELATIONS BROKEN OFF.

A Washington message says that Chile and Peru have broken off relations.

GERMANY.

CHAOS ON EASTERN FRONTIER.

A Copenhagen message says the situation on the German Eastern front is desperate. More than half a million German soldiers are marching through ice, snow, and mud to reach any railway station; while thousands of Russians from Germany are monopolising the railway trains and rolling stock. The Russians are without food and have insufficient clothes. They are plundering food-stores as they go along, and great panic prevails all along the routes.

INTERNMENT OF CROWN PRINCE.

The "Daily News'" Rotterdam correspondent telegraphs:—A number of Dutch journalists boarded the train conveying the Crown Prince to his place of internment on the Island of Wieringen. He showed no trace of hardship or depression and chatted freely. He said he did not know how long he would be kept at Wieringen.

He was asked: "Do you think of going back to Germany?" and said, "That depends upon what may happen there."

When asked, "Have you seen your father?" he said, "No; nor have I heard from him either for some weeks." He added that his wife was staying on in Germany.

STRASSBURG REGAINED.

At the moment when Foch led his troops into Strassburg the crepe veils and other emblems of servitude were removed from the Strassburg statue in the Place de la Concorde, and powerful searchlights turned upon the statue.

THE OUTLOOK.

Mr. Bonar Law, at Glasgow, referring to the financial outlook, said that unless production was kept up it would be impossible to keep up the standard of wages and living. "There is an opportunity such as never has occurred in our history of doing quickly, without disturbance, what in ordinary circumstances would take a generation to accomplish," he said.

BRITISH ELECTIONS.

Mr. J. Green, a Labourite, and an official of the British Workers' League, will oppose Mr. Ramsay M'Donald for the Leicester seat. Mr. Clem. Edwards will oppose Mr. Arthur Henderson for South-east Ham on behalf of the Coalition.

ENGLISH CRICKET.

Lancashire has submitted a proposal that county cricket matches in 1919 shall be confined to two days, and shall commence at 2 and end at 8 o'clock. It is also proposed that the number of balls to the over shall be increased to 8.

SLAUGHTERMEN ON STRIKE.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

As a result of the refusal of a demand for a reduction of hours from 48 to 44 a week, all the slaughtermen employed at the city abattoirs ceased work to-day. In consequence Friday's sheep market has been cancelled, but to-morrow's cattle market will proceed as usual. Retail butchers state in spite of the strike the public will be supplied with meat. About 150 men employed by the companies who deal with by-products have also ceased work.

STATE PARLIAMENT.

PASTURES PROTECTION BILL.

INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM.

When the Legislative Assembly met yesterday afternoon the Premier gave notice of the Venereal Diseases Bill. Mr. Fuller gave notice of the bill to amend the electoral law to provide for a new system of voting.

Replying to the leader of the Opposition, the Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Grahame) said that he had taken the earliest opportunity of resenting in the strongest language the report that he had pronounced Australian wheat as full of weevil.

Answering questions by Mr. G. M'Girr and Mr. Brookfield, the Premier said that there was no discontent in the Cabinet. Neither was there any truth in the statement that the Government contemplated a general election at an early date. "There is no immediate prospect of an election," said Mr. Holman, "so that members are safe in their seats for some time to come."

Mr. Holman told Mr. Wearne that arrangements had already been made for the issue of return railway tickets to the next-of-kin of returning soldiers who were unable to defray the expense to travel from the country to meet their soldier relatives.

RAILWAY CONSTRUCTION.

The Premier, answering Mr. Zuill and Mr. Wearne, said that in remarks by him, published in the "Sydney Morning Herald," respecting the Government's intention to proceed with the construction of the city railway in annual instalments, he was speaking not of the city railway in particular, but of the necessity of proceeding as soon as possible with the building of lines to open up land for settlement. Lines such as the North Coast line and the one to Pilliga Scrub came within this category.

SENTENCES ON SOLDIERS.

Answering Mr. Johnston, the Premier said the question of reviewing the sentences passed on soldiers connected with the A.I.F. by courts-martial was one that should be asked of the Federal rather than the State Government. He (Mr. Holman) sympathised with the idea.

THE REFERENDUM.

Mr. Kearsley moved.—"That in the opinion of this House the Government should at once bring in a bill to provide that, upon demands being made by 50,000 voters under our State Constitutions, any law or resolution of general application passed by Parliament shall be submitted to the electors for acceptance or rejection." He contended that the electors should have the right to decide big national questions by referendum. His proposal had for its object the right of the people to veto and the right to initiate legislation. There were many factions in the community; some desired reform in one direction and some desired it in another. The result of this was that men might easily become excited and cause a revolution. Meanwhile the people as a whole had no chance of indicating their will upon the particular reforms desired.

Mr. Perry secured the adjournment of the debate.

INQUIRY INTO GOLD LEASES.

Mr. Colquhoun moved,—"That a select committee be appointed to inquire into and report upon the circumstances relating to the applications of Mr. Charles Lancelot Garland for certain special gold leases on the Macquarie River."

The debate on the motion was adjourned until Tuesday next.

THIRD READINGS.

The Women's Legal Status Bill and the Justices (Bail) Amendment Bill were read the third time, and passed.

SPECIAL DEPOSITS (INDUSTRIAL UNDERTAKINGS) BILL.

On the motion of Mr. Ball (Minister for Works) the expediency of introducing the Special Deposits (Industrial Undertakings) Bill was considered in committee. He said the Act, which authorised the establishment of State industrial undertakings, contained no power to wind them up. The Roselle Joinery Works were burned down some years ago, and the Botany Sand Lime Brickworks were closed down, yet they still appeared in the list of industrial undertakings, and interest was still charged against them. The bill would give power to wind up such undertakings.

The motion was agreed to after debate, and the bill introduced and read the first time.

MAROUBRA BAY TRAMWAY BILL.

Mr. Ball (Minister for Works) moved in committee the expediency of introducing a bill to authorise the building of a tramway line from Dudley's Corner to Maroubra Bay. The line, he said, would be a mile and 32 chains long, and the estimated cost was £27,248. It would open up an area of Crown lands at Maroubra Bay, which would be sold after the line was made. The Public Works Committee was not in existence, and the proposed line could not be referred to it.

Mr. J. Storey and other members opposed the motion, alleging that the eyes had been already picked out of the Crown lands in the vicinity; that there were country railways already authorised which should be built, and that it was opening the door to political jobbery to lay down this line without reference to the Public Works Committee.

The Minister agreed to an adjournment of the debate.

PASTURES PROTECTION (AMENDMENT) BILL.

Mr. Grahame (Minister for Agriculture) moved the second reading of the Pastures Protection (Amendment) Bill. He said the scheme of the bill was the outcome of recommendations by practical men immediately concerned in the improvement of stock. About 3,000,000 acres of land were taken up in travelling stock and camping reserves, and the pastures boards had been or would be consulted as to curtailing the area of these reserves. Mr. Burgess, the commissioner appointed by the Government to formulate and explain the scheme of curtailment, had already explained it to 29 boards, which had fallen in with his ideas, and these had agreed to the taking away of 550,000 acres of the area in their districts. This land would be available for soldiers or general settlement. An area of 720,000 acres of reserves were already under profitable occupation. Many of the leases were for short terms, and would therefore soon be available for other forms of settlement. It was not proposed to interfere with the terms of the lease where long periods had yet to run. Power would be given under the bill to pastures boards to charge travelling stock fees, and the money from these would be expended by the boards in improvements, such as the destruction of noxious animals and weeds. In April next the present boards would go out of office by effluxion of time, and the new boards would be elected upon a new franchise. This gave each stockowner equal voting power, and did away with plural voting. There were other minor amendments of the present pastures legislation doing away with anomalies in the law.

The second reading was agreed to, and the bill taken through Committee.

JURY AMENDMENT BILL.

The second reading of the Jury (Amendment) Bill was moved by Mr. Hall (Attorney-General), who explained that it was to exempt commercial travellers who lived in the city but whose business necessitated them travelling in the country, and mine managers, from serving on juries.

The motion was agreed to, and the bill taken through Committee.

ADJOURNMENT.

The House adjourned at 11.40 p.m. until 4.30 o'clock to-day.

VOTING SYSTEM.

PARLIAMENT TO DECIDE.

It is now certain that the bill to amend the electoral law in regard to the system of voting will be brought forward during this session of the State Parliament, probably this week.

Last night the Premier stated that the matter had been fully considered at a meeting of the National party that day. A suggestion by Mr. Fuller, Chief Secretary, to bring forward the amendment in general terms, without specifying either preferential voting or proportional representation, had been adopted.

Mr. Holman explained that this course had been chosen in order to avoid the possibility of both suggested new systems being voted down with the help of the Opposition. When the bill is brought before the House a proposal will be made either for preferential voting or for proportional representation, according to the views of the member who "catches the Speaker's eye." Whichever system that may be its rejection will be taken by the Government as the acceptance of the other principle, or vice versa. A few members of the party indicated that they felt bound to their constituents to countenance only one system, but these are not sufficiently numerous to affect the general attitude of the party.

REDUCTION IN FREIGHTS.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Tuesday.

The chairman of the New Zealand Overseas Shipowners' Committee announces that the homeward freight rates of certain classes of general cargo will be reduced approximately 25 per cent.

THE BARAMBAH.

FIERCE COMMENT IN PARLIAMENT.

DREADFUL CONDITIONS ALLEGED.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The condition of the troopship Barambah on her last voyage from Australia was debated in the House of Representatives to-day, when a motion for the adjournment was moved by Mr. Gregory (W.A.). He said that from the information he obtained from reliable sources the vessel when she was at Fremantle was in a dirty condition, and had broken down three or four times on the voyage from Melbourne to Western Australia. He urged that an inquiry should be made. He wanted to give the Acting Prime Minister and the Acting Minister for the Navy full credit for the action they had taken when he notified them by telegram of the vessel's condition.

Mr. M'Grath (V.) made serious charges against the treatment and food given to invalided men on the return to Australia. He had had experience at the front, and on the vessel on which he returned home one man with a double amputation, who complained that he and his mates were not getting a fair deal, was brought before the Commanding Officer, and he was fined two days' pay for making use of those words. Two hundred officers on that vessel had more space than 1000 soldiers. A returning soldier on another vessel said that he had received better food in Germany than was given out on the voyage to Australia. Mr. M'Grath read letters signed by men affected, showing that five blind men and three double amputation cases were put down on the lowest deck. When the transport was passing through the Channel if the vessel had been torpedoed there would have been no possible chance for them to escape. In another instance men with double amputations had to get out of their cots to make room for munition workers. Menus were produced showing that for breakfast officers had a selection of oatmeal porridge, fried sole, frizzled bacon, buttered egg, lamb's fry, hot roll, toast to order, preserves, tea, coffee, and cocoa; while the rations for the men were stew, and porridge in big thick lumps, without sugar and milk. The contrast for the second meal was just as great, and for the third meal the officers were provided with poultry, ham, and other foods, while the men had to be content with bread and jam.

Mr. Kelly (N.S.W.) described the vessel and her condition as a hell on the waters, and said that the charge of the filthy condition would justify someone being hanged.

Mr. Corboys (W.A.) stated that when he was returning to Australia from abroad over 800 men were allotted a small portion of the two well decks, while six officers and one Y.M.C.A. officer had the whole of the boat deck. The food supply was fairly good, but the staff on the boat was inadequate.

The Acting Minister for the Navy (Mr. Poynton), in reply, said that everything that could be expected was done before the Barambah left Fremantle. He pointed out that the vessel had been examined in both Sydney and Melbourne, and was reported to be all right. The Fremantle naval officer had reported that nothing was known there that the vessel was not in a good condition when she left, and the Fremantle Military Commandant stated that no complaints were received about the vessel. The Durban District Naval Officer reported that the master of the vessel had stated that the engines on the voyage had worked satisfactorily. Continuing, Mr. Poynton said that he did not know why the men were allowed to land at Durban. It was quite possible that the statements in the London papers were the result of what occurred after the vessel left Durban. He would certainly have an inquiry made.

The motion was lost.

BLAST FURNACE DISASTER.

LITHGOW, Tuesday.

An appalling disaster occurred at the blast furnaces late this afternoon. One of the furnaces was about to be tapped when it prematurely blew out. William George Cox, foreman, who was standing right in front of the plug, received the full blast of the white-hot molten mass, and he was immediately buried beneath a sea of metal. Joseph Henderson, manager, was also very badly burned about the body; and Ben Goodwin, an employee of Messrs. Hoskins, Ltd., for many years, was severely burned about the face, and it is feared that his eyes are affected. A number of other men were also more or less injured. Cox was a married man with one son at the front.

RETURNED ANZACS.

A special welcome to the returned Anzacs will be given by the Public school children to-morrow. For this purpose all Anzacs are invited to assemble at the Anzac Buffet in the Domain at 1.30 p.m. to-morrow, when motor cars from all the schools in the city and suburbs will be awaiting them. The cars will return to the various schools, each carrying about four of the honoured guests, who are assured joyous receptions. At night a children's "welcome home" concert to the Anzacs will be held at the Town Hall.

FIRE AT SURRY HILLS.

About 11 o'clock last night a fire was discovered at the Crystal Bleach Works, owned by Mr. H. H. Varney, hat manufacturer, of Beaconsfield-parade, Lindfield. When the brigades arrived the flames had a good hold of the building. The interior of the premises, which are of three stories, was practically gutted, the damage being estimated at between £1500 and £2000.

RAILWAY AND TRAMWAY ASSESSORS.

Mr. Sydney Smith, general secretary to the New South Wales Railway and Tramway Officers' Association, said yesterday that under the provisions of the Industrial Arbitration Act assessors were to be appointed in the Industrial Court, and the Railway and Tramway Officers' Association had taken a ballot for the purpose of electing the assessors for the various groups of the railways and tramways, with the following results:—Clerical, David Cumming 574, James Davoren 291 (Mr. Cumming elected); stationmasters and night officers, Tom Casserly 404, James Davoren 48 (Mr. Casserly elected); traffic inspectors, Harry Crawford 34, James Davoren 5 (Mr. Crawford elected); draftsmen and professional, R. J. Boyd 51, R. M. Mathers 30, R. Donaldson 25 (Mr. Boyd elected); tramway inspectors and chargemen, E. J. Weine 61, G. Tighe 36 (Mr. Weine elected).

SYDNEY HOSPITAL APPOINTMENTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—My attention has been called to a letter which appeared in last Friday's "Herald," signed "M. Roy Teece," in which he finds fault with the directors for the appointment made by the board of directors of Dr. Perry as medical superintendent, instead of another candidate for the position whom Mr. Teece considers to be more entitled by reason of being a returned soldier. The board of directors surely were in a much better position to judge of the suitability of the applicants than Mr. Teece—they had the applications and references of the three (not two, as Mr. Teece says) candidates before them, and many of the directors had been called on by them. The board fully recognises the duty it owes to the public to secure for it the best service possible, and at the same time has not lost sight of the duty it owes to those who enlisted and served with our soldiers abroad. I may mention that Dr. Perry offered himself for military service when a student, on the outbreak of the war, but was rejected owing to a physical disability. He underwent an operation to fit himself, but without success, so that his patriotism is just as assured as that of the gentleman whom Mr. Teece is concerned about, and his right to be appointed on that ground just as good.

The material things that Mr. Teece did not state, although he was fully informed of same before he wrote his letter, are:—

(1.) Mr. Teece's friend obtained leave of absence for active service abroad, and served accordingly. He returned to Sydney, but did not report himself for service at the hospital or seek to resume his position on the staff. On the contrary, he retained a military appointment here which he was prepared to give up if he had obtained the appointment at Sydney Hospital at £1000 a year. He subsequently offered to accept the position at the reduced figure which the board had fixed as the remuneration to be paid to the medical superintendent.

(2.) The board of directors required the medical superintendent to be an unmarried man, as there was no accommodation in the hospital for a man and his wife. Mr. Teece's friend was a married man.

(3.) The board required its superintendent to undertake to serve for three years if required. Mr. Teece's friend would not bind himself to serve for more than one year.

As the returned soldier in question, therefore, did not comply with the conditions specified by the board and by the regulations, it is difficult to see how even Mr. Teece could complain that his friend did not receive the appointment.

I am, etc.,

A. E. JAQUES,
President Sydney Hospital.

INFLUENZA.

FOUR MORE DEATHS

SIX FRESH CASES.

FIJI HEAVILY INFECTED.

The deaths of three more of the Medic men accentuates the tragic story of several hundred patriotic Australians who were recalled while on their way to the front because of the signing of the armistice, only to find themselves in the throes of the dread influenza or epidemic pneumonia. The three men whose cases have proved fatal, in addition to the one whose death has already been published, are:—Pte. John Henry Petterick, 17th G.S.R. (Victoria); Pte. Frederick Morgan, 20th, G.S.R. (N.S.W.), Pte. Harry Mackay, 26th G.S.R. (N.S.W.). They were buried with full military honours yesterday morning. Another of the Atua's crew—Savanaka—has also died of the disease. The death roll on the Quarantine station now totals 22 out of a total of about 570 cases.

Two military nurses have been admitted to hospital, both being ordinarily ill. Their names are Sister Minnie Wray and Sister Annie Egan.

The following of the Medic troops were classified as dangerously ill and seriously ill up to 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the latter including Major E. C. Padman, officer commanding troops:—

Dangerously ill:—Pte. James Cahill, Pte. Joseph Hunt, Pte. Hector Hicks, Pte. George Albert Liversidge, Pte. Robert Fairley, Cpl. Thomas John Tracey, Pte. Raymond W. Metzler, Paschiale Macioni, Italian reservist.

Seriously ill:—Pte. F. N. Adling, Pte. T. C. Mitchell, Pte. Hector G. Shepherd, Pte. William H. Swingler, Sgt. T. A. R. Williamson, Corp. Henry F. J. Soutar, Sgt. Arthur M. Burns, Pte. Leslie S. Marshall, Pte. Horace J. Wildon, Corp. Harry E. Ansell, Pte. Joseph F. Barnes, Pte. Ernest G. Meers, Pte. William E. Macilan, Pte. Percy Robert Munro, Pte. Sidney W. Searles, Pte. Jack Lawson, Pte. George Meservy, Corp. Lionel Dunlop, Pte. John Edwards, Pte. Herbert John Kelly, Pte. Percy C. Moore, Pte. Clarence Deballe, Pte. Michael E. Cullen, Lance-corp. Clyde Westmoreland, Pte. Charles R. Gaberity, Pte. Charles V. Thurston, Pte. James C. Craig, Mr. Ernest Percy Eltham, officers of the Commonwealth Arsenal; Captain Raymond Brownell, Captain Clyde Reg. Alexander, Major E. C. Hansford, Pte. M. T. M'Donald, Pte. H. E. Pring, Pte. Richard Davis, Pte. S. A. Gosper, Pte. H. S. Haining, Pte. L. E. M'William, Pte. Jack Thompson, Corp. H. H. Brown, Pte. P. Blood-Smythe, Pte. H. V. Furlong, Pte. V. J. Hogan, Pte. J. Searles, Pte. Percy S. Leeder, S.-Sgt. H. P. Fresser, Pte. Wm. W. William, Pte. David Waugh, Pte. Walter Copock, S.-sgt. Joseph Stock, S.-sgt. Harold E. Krutle, Pte. Wm. Leslie Newman, Pte. E. J. Bower, Pte. Arthur V. Loder, Pte. B. Beveridge, Pte. A. R. Best, Corp. H. E. Harding, Pte. J. A. Childs, Pte. S. R. Simpson, Pte. Harry O. Taylor, Pte. Richard Davis, Pte. W. C. Burless.

Last night's report showed that the condition of Pte. Cahill and Corporal Tracey was then grave. All other dangerous and serious cases remained about the same, with the exception of Captains Brownell and Alexander, whose condition in each case was reported to have improved.

The cases of the two nursing sisters and four members of the crew of the Medic constituted the only fresh cases reported yesterday, although the names of 54 additional Italian reservists who had previously been admitted were given out. These include the following more serious cases:—

Dangerously Ill.—Pietro Vitronella, Ugo, Pita Vargium, Burjeus, Sherzi, Lanig, and Nicola.

Seriously Ill.—Guiseppe, Anguia, Mulberina, Urisno, Pittorina, and Cenedotti. The other cases are only slightly ill.

A FLUCTUATING DISEASE.

"The barrier," reported Dr. Elkington yesterday afternoon, "is still held. The situation from the administrative point of view is very satisfactory. There are a number of people who are seriously ill at the station, but it is only to be expected in the course of the disease, which is fluctuating in its character." Speaking of the efficiency of the vaccine, Dr. Elkington said it was found that those who were vaccinated, if taken early, did not develop the more serious forms of the disease. "We are still confident," he adds, "that the measures we have taken are generally proving successful."

INOCULATION.

DEPOTS OPEN TO-DAY.

The Director-General of Public Health (Dr. Paton) announces that three inoculating depots will be open to-day from 2 p.m. till 5 p.m. They will be situated at the Central Recruiting Depot, corner Liverpool and Elizabeth streets, Hyde Park; at the Water Police Court (Phillip-street entrance); and at the Newtown Town Hall.

POSITION SUMMARISED.

Of 325 military cases, 15, including both Australians and Italians reservists, are classed as dangerously ill, 69 as seriously ill, and 241 as ill.

Of the civil cases, taking the Atua, the Manuka, and the Medic, one case—that of Frank Orton—is critical, five are very ill, three are ill, and 83 are improving.

MANUKA PATIENTS.

Of those of the Manuka cases who still remain in hospital Young Wong (slight improvement), Camilla Hasel, and Herbert Wayne are classified as ill. Those given out as improving are:—

Daisy Irwin, Harriett Lambert, Brenda Roberts, Daphne Wills, Eliosa Lambert, Michael Berger, George Barker, James Brown, Horace Cotterell, Leslie Coffey, Lawrence Beavis, H. Eldrid, Ernest Gooderson, Benjamin Leavy, William Lamb, Mon Yick, Henry Martin, C. J. M'Pherson, William J. Neville, Gordon Neil, Fred Roberts, John Richardson, Ernest Solomon, Gerald Silk, James Brown, James Bones, and Fred Tersdale.

SCOURGE REACHES FIJI.

Fiji has not only come within the grip of the disease, but is reported to be badly infected. All the vessels from the South Pacific Islands will be limited to Sydney as the first port of entry, and will be dealt with in the same manner as New Zealand vessels.

The whole of the Pacific Islands will be regarded for the quarantine authorities' purposes as affected, in order to avoid the danger of infection by vessels from that centre.

"We have no particulars," said Dr. Elkington yesterday, "except that the islands are heavily infected. We will handle shipping accordingly. No doubt the expedition to Samoa will call at Fiji on the way in order to go into the position."

VESSELS DISCHARGED.

The Manuka was released yesterday. The Boveric will be released to-day, and the Riverina and the Bangor on Thursday, providing that conditions remain as at present.

PARTICULARS OF PATIENTS.

It is stated, in explanation of the compilation of patients' lists, that the difficulty hitherto has been to obtain full and accurate reports from the military hospital section of the station. This it is pointed out, does not imply that there is any failure to report promptly all those patients who are classified as dangerously or seriously ill—those who are reported as being ordinarily ill need not be the subject of misgivings on the part of their relations so long as they continue to be so reported—nor does it, it is added imply any oversight or neglect with respect to the care of the patients in the military hospitals. "The military medical officers," said Dr. Elkington, "have co-operated well with us, and have done everything that could be expected. It is anticipated that, within a short period, the necessary administrative arrangements will be so completed as to enable full detailed reports of each group at the station to be supplied by telephone punctually and regularly to the quarantine office."

The Coast Hospital staff were to have been inoculated yesterday. To-day the department hopes to afford similar facilities to tram conductors, members of the police, and others whose work brings them into close contact with the public.

"BAD BACON" THEORY.

Dr. Elkington scouts the "bad bacon" theory as applying to the outbreak which is engaging the attention of the Commonwealth Quarantine authorities. Referring to this theory, and to the cablegram from London attributing the epidemic there to bad bacon, Dr. Elkington remarked:—"I do not consider that this cause plays any part in the outbreak which has come within our purview here. Take the north-eastern division, for instance —from Brisbane to Darling—there are Mohammedans, who do not in any circumstances eat pig meat, so that in their case at least the theory is definitely excluded."

The members of the Pharmaceutical Society, it is stated, have offered their services to the Health Department in any direction which may be considered desirable in the event of the disease evading Quarantine.

GOVERNMENT PRECAUTIONS.

HEALTH MINISTER'S REVIEW.

Last night the Minister for Health (Mr. Fitzgerald) made the following statement:— "The question has been raised as to the alleged breaking of quarantine by the medical officers of the Commonwealth. The best medical opinion is to the effect that a medical man is no more immune from acquiring the disease than any other individual, and its manifestations may not be evident for at least two days. The opinion is held by the medical authorities of the State that this is a very grave risk, which should be discontinued. Any medical officer coming in contact with a case of this form of influenza should be isolated in exactly the same way as ordinary contacts before being allowed amongst the public. We understand that this rule has been applied already by the Federal quarantine officers to doctors desirous of visiting quarantine for scientific purposes, and the rule certainly should apply both ways. The Minister and the Department of Health desire to say that, apart from the foregoing criticism, they have the utmost admiration for the success of the measures which have been taken by Dr. Cumpston and the Commonwealth quarantine authorities. It is, indeed, a splendid achievement to have up to now confined this dangerous disease within the quarantine grounds.

GENERAL VACCINATION.

"The question has arisen as to whether the people should submit themselves to preventive vaccination now, or wait till a time when the disease might break quarantine. Seeing that it takes a week to vaccinate a person efficiently—i.e., the second dose is given seven days after the first—Dr. Paton is of opinion that the sooner the general public submit themselves to vaccination the better. The department urges the public in the strongest possible manner to avail themselves at the earliest of the opportunities which will be afforded for vaccination. Universal vaccination will be of great assistance to the medical authorities in minimising the spread of the disease should it break quarantine. It is clearly to be understood that medical authorities do not guarantee that vaccination furnishes a complete immunity from the disease, but the probabilities are that it will be of great assistance in this direction, and should also minimise the complications consequent on influenza.

PATROL OF QUARANTINE.

"The Inspector-General of Police and his Department have been vigilant in regard to the patrolling of the quarantine with a view to preventing any person escaping. As the point has been raised that some of the quarantine ships are anchored outside the quarantine boundary, and in the north-easterly winds certain ships were lying across the fairway between Smedley's and Dobroyd Points, to obviate this condition the Inspector-General recommends that heavy moorings be laid down in Spring Cove with buoys attached, one set of moorings to be placed in line in the 5½-fathom patch just off the beach. The Inspector-General also reports that his department has policed the water frontage outside the quarantine area, and that there is a patrol motor launch at night with a searchlight."

QUARANTINE SITE.

Mr. A. A. C. Cocks, M.L.A., referring in the Legislative Assembly on Monday night to the influenza outbreak, and to the proposal for the removal of the Quarantine Station, said that reasonable and calm consideration of the position would disclose the fact that the sale of the 600 acres embraced in the Quarantine Station would easily realise over £500,000. Thus the removal of the Quarantine Station to a site sufficiently far away to bring the risk of infection to a vanishing point could be carried out, and a large margin of profit would remain. He was credibly informed that the 600 acres embraced within the quarantine area would realise £1000 per acre. It was to be regretted that Sir Joseph Cook and Brigadier-General Ryrie were away, and were unable to press the claims of New South Wales for the removal of the Quarantine Station. "If we do not raise our voice on this question," he added, "we cannot expect Mr. Watt or those associated with him who are not in touch with us to do as we desire. We should at once urge them to make the most profitable use of the magnificent asset they have at North Head, and to establish a quarantine station under such conditions that the public will be fully safeguarded."

MILITARY CAMPS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Minister for Defence, Senator Pearce, who returned from Adelaide this morning, when questioned as to the serious danger that would exist at militia camps if Spanish influenza extended beyond the quarantine boundaries, said that there was no more danger in a military camp than there was in a theatre or a picture show. He added that if the disease extended beyond the quarantine areas immediate action would be taken to safeguard the soldiers in camps. It was not, however, considered necessary to disband the men in camps.

IMPORTANT CONFERENCE.

DR. PATON'S WARNING.

"Up to the present, so far as we are aware, the quarantine barrier has not been broken. It is thought that from 24 hours to four days elapse before the patient shows any definite symptoms. If the disease does get outside the quarantine area it will be very quick, short, and sharp. It will sweep over the community."

These are extracts from an extremely practical address delivered yesterday by Dr. Paton (Director-General of Public Health), to representatives of municipalities and shires, who were called together by the Government to discuss preventive measures. The Minister for Public Health (Mr. Fitzgerald), who presided, said he was not assuming that those present had not interested themselves in stamping out the disease, but he wanted them to look after the cleanliness of their own areas.

Mr. Fitzgerald at a later stage left to attend a meeting of the Cabinet, and the chair was taken by Mr. Garlick (Under-Secretary for Local Government).

Dr. Paton said that the Health Department proposed at first to establish three vaccination stations. Tramguards, barbers, policemen, and others of similar callings would be the first to be inoculated. So far as was known, the vaccine was not nearly so reliable as that against smallpox. But the health authorities believed that it would prove useful. If the vaccine did not do any good, it would not do any harm. In all probability the vaccinating depots would be opened on Wednesday. One of the ingredients of the vaccine grew very slowly, and the other very fast. The department could produce only 5000 doses a day. If found necessary, a depot could be established in every town hall. The Government was prepared to supply the vaccine and the doctor if the local authorities would supply the hall and any other assistance. If the disease made its presence in Sydney, and he hoped it would not, any persons suffering from it would be removed to hospital. In addition to the Coast Hospital and other buildings decided upon, temporary hospitals would have to be established. On the first appearance of the epidemic the schools would be closed and converted into temporary hospitals.

An Alderman: How would that affect the pupils when they return to school?

Dr. Paton replied that it would not affect them in any way. The disease could live only in a living body. After the patient had been removed all the contacts, or those who would submit would be inoculated. The noses and mouths of contacts would be disinfected by means of a steam spray. Sulphate of zinc had proved very useful. The health authorities considered that the wearing of respirators would be a very distinct method of preventing the spread of influenza. A man, if he had influenza, and wore a mask with four layers of gauze, could converse with another person without any risk to that individual. It would be like setting up a brick wall. In the same way a man without influenza, and wearing such a mask, would be able to come into contact with a person suffering from the disease and still not catch it. If necessary, ambulance trams would convey patients to the Coast Hospital.

Ald. Latimer, M.L.A., Mayor of Woollahra, suggested that as a preliminary step ferry boats, trams, trains, and amusement halls should be disinfected.

Dr. Paton stated that to disinfect was always a good thing, but in the case of epidemic pneumonia it was not carried by inanimate objects. Rooms and cars would not carry the particular infection. The germ was very delicate, and there was the utmost difficulty in keeping it alive so as to experiment.

Ald. Gendle (Petersham) thought a conference of health inspectors should be convened.

Dr. Paton stated that health inspectors would be instructed in the use of the spray.

Ald. Isaacs (Randwick) said that not only did the Randwick Council offer no objection to patients being taken to the Coast Hospital, but it was prepared to place at the disposal of the authorities any portion of the municipality that might be used in stamping out the disease. (Applause.)

On the motion of Ald. Heaton (Mayor of Manly), seconded by Councillor Quirk (president of the Warringah Shire), it was resolved: "That the Federal Government be approached with a view to preventing garbage from the quarantined ships being washed up to the foreshores."

Cr. Lockley (Kuring-gai) suggested that the rubbish should be destroyed in the ships' furnace. He asked whether there was any danger of persons on the ferry boats which passed within 100 yards of the quarantined vessels being infected.

Dr. Paton said that, so far as he knew, there was not.

The shires of Kuring-gai and Warringah and the municipality of Burwood applied for supplies of vaccine.

Dr. Paton stated that the number of vaccinating depots would be increased after a start had been made with the three he had already mentioned. All the nurses in hospitals were being inoculated that day.

Alderman Quirk moved,—"That, in the opinion of this meeting, the Quarantine Station at North Head is a menace to the health of the people of Sydney and suburbs, and we respectfully ask the Federal Government to appoint a Royal Commission to go into the whole matter, with a view to its removal to a more suitable site."

He said that it was not only Manly that was affected, but the whole of the metropolitan area. (Applause.)

Ald. Walker (Mayor of Mosman), who seconded the motion, said that disease from all parts of the world seemed to be congregated within the gates of the premier city of the Commonwealth.

The motion was carried unanimously.

Dr. Paton announced that a conference was being held in Melbourne, and it was thought that the Director-General of Quarantine would outline the symptoms of the disease which had been observed by the medical officials at the quarantine stations. A paragraph instructing the people what to do would be printed on the front page of every newspaper. That would be much better than pamphlets. (Applause.)

A vote of thanks was accorded the Minister for Public Health, the Director-General of Public Health, and their officers for the prompt steps which had been taken to cope with the epidemic.

FEDERAL SESSION.

NO SALE OF WHEAT TO ENGLAND.

RACING RESTRICTIONS TO BE REMOVED.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

A badge is to be issued to all members who enlisted in the Australian Imperial Forces and who were in camp on the date of the signing of the armistice, said the Acting Minister for Defence, Mr. Wise, in the House of Representatives to-day in reply to a question by Mr. Atkinson (Tas.).

A special inquiry has been made into the statement "that on the demobilisation of the men in Liverpool camp some of the troops had to leave in their pyjamas as no clothing had been provided for them." The District Commandant of New South Wales, Mr. Wise said, had forwarded an emphatic denial of the allegation, and given an assurance that there was no shortage of plain-clothes suits.

The Acting Minister for the Navy, Mr. Poynton, informed Mr. Kelly (N.S.W.) that he would have inquiries made into the advisability of using the training ship Tingira as a hospital ship in connection with the quarantine outbreak.

At a later stage of the sitting Mr. Poynton said that instructions had been issued to troopships that men were not to be landed in affected ports. Men, however, had gone ashore in places in spite of those instructions.

Mr. Kelly: Did that happen to the Medic?

The Acting Prime Minister (Mr. Watt): I think so. I understand she was ordered to lie in the stream.

The Federal Cabinet, Mr. Watt informed Mr. Gregory (W.A.), decided to-day to withdraw the regulations affecting racing from December 25.

The Acting Minister for Defence (Mr. Wise) informed Mr. West (N.S.W.) that the Austral Nail Company anticipated that the price of wire would fall from £44 a ton to £32 on December 1. The pre-war price of £7/10/ per ton was due to the competition of German imported wire, and bounties paid by the German Government to manufacturers. The Broken Hill Company was now erecting a large wire-drawing plant at Newcastle in conjunction with the Austral Nail Company. The preliminary difficulty in rolling wire rods had not yet been overcome, and until the rods were perfect and of uniform quality the company was not prepared to place them on the market.

Replying to a question by Mr. Sampson (Vic.), Mr. Watt said that he had just received a long cable message from England which he had not had time to read fully, and which led him to conclude that it would not be possible to sell the Australian wheat to England.

Mr. Watt informed Mr. Rogers (Vic.) that the regulation preventing the granting of more than 4½ per cent. interest on loans to companies was still in force. It was promulgated with the object of keeping rates of interest down, and he thought it essential that it should still be preserved as other loans would be raised for war or repatriation purposes. The regulation was being operated with great care.

Consideration of the Defence Bill was resumed. A provision for a penalty of £50, or imprisonment for six months, or both, for offences in connection with resisting drafting was carried on the casting vote of the Chairman, but a clause providing a similar penalty for persons refusing to be sworn when drafted was lost by 22 votes to 21.

Progress was reported.

The Acting Attorney-General, Mr. Groom, moved the second reading of the Beer Excise Bill, and said that provision was made for action to be taken against manufacturers of so-called soft drinks, which in some cases contained a very considerable percentage of alcohol. As a result of the High Court decision manufacturers of such drinks might now escape punishment, on the ground that though the drink might contain an illegal proportion of alcohol when analysed, there was no evidence to show that the limit was exceeded at the time of manufacture, and the drink became strongly alcoholic during process of fermentation. The amendment would fix the liability on the person who brewed the beer.

The bill passed all stages.

On the motion for adjournment, Mr. Watt, in reply to a question, said that General Featherstone, P.M.O., Australian Forces, returned to Australia in a ship which was not quarantined, as it did not call at any affected ports.

The House adjourned at 11.5 p.m. till to-morrow.

PRESS CENSORSHIP.

SOME RESTRICTIONS TO BE CANCELLED.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Approval has been given by the Minister for Defence for cancellation of most of the Press censorship restrictions which have been enforced during the war period. The Deputy Chief Censor (Lieut.-colonel McColl) said to-day that censorship would continue to be exercised with regard to statements likely to prejudicially affect the Allies at the Peace Conference, and in connection with other matters under the control of the Imperial authorities, such as disposition of troops on the Western front or the movements of transports. With these exceptions all restrictions would be immediately removed.

MAIL BAG ROBBED.

A mail-bag, containing registered articles, was despatched from Leeton on November 12. When it was opened at Sydney the registered contents were missing.

A postal detective stated yesterday that the mails were conveyed from Leeton to Yanco railway station. They were then placed in the railway brake van, and were conveyed to Junee in charge of the railway officials. At Junee they were handed over to the postal sorters in the mail van, and brought on to Sydney. Officials at the central building of the Post Office noticed that the string of the mail-bag had been interfered with, and on further investigation discovered that the registered mail, to the value of £10, had been stolen.

COMMEMORATION SERVICE.

"Although you are sad to-day, the day will come when the kind hand of time will heal every wound and dry away the tears. In the future your eyes will glisten with pride when you show the medal or the ribbon, and when you remember you were the wives and mothers of men and heroes."

This was Chaplain Chaseling's final word to the large gathering of soldiers' wives and mothers who attended the commemoration and thanksgiving service in the Town Hall yesterday under the auspices of the Association of Centres for Soldiers' Wives and Mothers. Lady Davidson presided, and those on the platform included Brigadier-General Wallach, Dr. Mary Booth, the Rev. Dr. Carruthers (president of the Methodist Conference), Chaplain McKenzie, M.C., and Chaplain Cranston.

"We will hold in grateful memory those who have fallen on the field of battle," said Chaplain McKenzie. "I would like to place on record the great efforts put forth by the women of our Empire. We have reason to be extremely proud of them. They have risen to great heights of service and sacrifice in the hour of the Empire's danger, and even in the darkest moments when the most terrible suffering of mind and anguish of spirit was upon them, they took their courage in both hands and disciplined their spirit. There was no audible cry of halt. There are none who have suffered more than the womenfolk. Many of them while they are glad to see other mothers and wives getting their loved ones back know that they can never welcome back their men."

Chaplain Catpain Chaseling said he did not believe there was one man who had died for the cause of righteousness that would be lost. The sacrifices of these men should make Australia in the future a grander country. The German Navy had not won because it did not have its Nelsons nor the traditions of the British Navy. It was because of those traditions and because every man in the British Navy was a potential Nelson that Britannia would continue to rule the waves. (Applause.)

The service, which was most impressive, opened with the singing of the National Anthem. Then followed the hymn "O God Our Help in Ages Past," a prayer in commemoration of the fallen; the hymn "For all the Saints who from their labours rest;" the Magnificat, the Recessional, and the Benediction.

SPORTING.

THE TURF.

The November meeting of the Menangle Racing Club takes place this afternoon, and the programme for the occasion promises interesting sport. Special trains, leaving the Central Railway Station at 10.30 (horses), [illegible] and 12 noon, will convey visitors to the scene of action.

The English St. Leger winner, Night Hawk, arrived in Sydney on Monday by the Boila, and, after undergoing the usual term in quarantine, will go into Messrs. H. Chisholm and Co.'s stables, Randwick. Night Hawk, who is a brown horse, foaled in 1910, is a decided acquisition to Australian blood stock, for he is not [illegible] bred, and a fine stamp of the British thoroughbred; but he is the only English classic winner in Australasia. He is by Gallinule (son of Isonomy) from Jean's Folly (half-sister to Cherry Lass, winner of the One Thousand Guineas, Oaks, and £14,959 prize money), by Ayrshire from Black Cherry, by Bendigo from Black Duchess (dam of the very successful sire Bay Ronald, whose son, Bayardo, is the premier sire in England), by Galliard. Night Hawk was imported by Mr. E. R. White, of Merton, but as he has given up the breeding of thoroughbreds, the horse will probably be disposed of by private sale.

On Monday next, at their sale of blood stock, Messrs. H. Chisholm and Co. will offer for sale, in aid of the War Chest Fund, the racehorse Choirmaster, by Sir Tristram (imp.) from Choir Girl. A number of well-known racehorses are catalogued for sale on that occasion.

Messrs. H. Chisholm and Co. will offer for sale at 3 p.m. to-day the residence, Heatherbrae, together with training stables attached thereto, situated at the corner of Botany and Hay streets, Randwick, and recently occupied by R. A. Campbell, who is temporarily retiring from training.

Messrs. H. Chisholm and Co. report the sale on account of the New Zealand sportsman, Mr. T. H. Lowry, the three-year-old colt Finmark, by Finland from Warecare, by Martian from Gossip, by Wallace, to Mr. A. P. Wade, and the colt goes into M. J. Hynes' stables at Rosehill.

Sport (William-street).—The starting price of First Trim in the Epsom Handicap on Saturday was 5 to 1 against.

FINANCIAL.

AUSTRALIAN BANKING AVERAGES.

The banking averages of Australia for the September quarter as compiled by the "Australasian Insurance and Banking Record" enable some interesting comparisons to be made with previous years. It is found that, in spite of war loans raised locally during the year amounting to in round figures £64,650,000, the deposits increased on the year by £9,288,602. At the same time there was a big jump in the advances, £29,098,695. This, of course, is due to advances in anticipation of savings for the purpose of enabling clients to take up war loan and advances on account of wheat. The figures for three years are as follows:—

	Quarter ended September 30, 1916.	1917.	1918.
Deposits—
Current accounts	£69,460,163	£79,083,426	£83,588,689
Fixed deposits	85,506,241	88,675,895	93,439,234
Total	£154,966,404	£167,759,321	£177,027,923
Advances	£128,046,976	£128,298,310	£157,327,295

If we compare the cash holdings we find that there has been some diminution. Coin and bullion has decreased by £974,798, and Commonwealth notes by £1,061,269, as the following table shows:—

CASH HOLDINGS.

	Quarter ended September 30, 1916.	1917.	1918.
Ordinary Banks.
Coin and bullion	£26,612,227	£21,407,242	£20,432,444
Com'wealth notes	16,507,699	20,804,157	19,742,888
	£43,119,926	£42,211,399	£40,175,332

These figures, cash holdings, deposits, and advances do not include the accounts of the Commonwealth Bank. The average note holdings of the Commonwealth Bank during the quarter ended September 30, 1916, were £15,145,616; the corresponding quarter of 1917, £9,621,499; and the corresponding quarter of 1918, £15,211,886.

A comparison of the holdings of coin and bullion of all the banks and the Commonwealth Treasury during the past three years is as follows:—

THE RISE IN PRICES.

During the war prices advanced enormously all over the world. To what was that rise due? Principally to the competition for supplies. The demand exceeded the available supplies. But there were other causes which aided the rise, one cause being the increase in the issue of paper currency in all nations. How far that cause operated is disputed. A committee of bankers and political economists of Sweden investigated the connection between the rise in prices and the increased note issue. The bankers on the committee are of the opinion that only in exceptional cases where more notes have been issued than the money market has been able to absorb can the issue of notes be said to have been the cause of the rise in prices. The political economists on the committee consider it probable the inflation of currency over the whole world is one of the causes of the rise in prices.

GERMAN WAR LOANS.

What will become of the German war loan securities? That Empire issued eight loans, and subscriptions were being made for the ninth when the armistice was signed. The total amount of the eight loans was £4,366,080,000. The loans raised were:—

1. Sep.-October, 1914	£224,050,000
2. March-April, 1915	455,250,000
3. Sept.-October, 1915	608,150,000
4. March-April, 1916	538,250,000
5. Sept.-October, 1916	532,500,000
6. March-April, 1917	648,942,000
7. Sept.-October, 1917	631,283,000
8. March-April, 1918	727,500,000
Total	£4,366,175,000

The value of those securities depends wholly on the form of government which rules Germany.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

There was a continued demand for all Christmas goods in grocery lines yesterday at the prices previously ruling, but otherwise business was slow. Buyers were awaiting events. Complaint was made regarding fixed prices of cream of tartar. It was stated that the rates fixed did not allow of a payable profit. Cream of tartar was declared to be the same price for a 2lb package as for a keg, which, of course, allowed nothing for the cost of packing. Tinned fruit was in demand. Peaches were most wanted at 12/. No supplies of apricots were available locally, but messages from Melbourne quoted 12/ f.o.b. As this was higher than the price of peaches, which are far more in request, no business was done. Candles were without alteration at from /8 to /10½. Imported whiting sold at £26 a ton. Local brands were available at £6/10/. Stocks of the higher grades of salmon were very low; Sockeye 1lb talls were quoted at 23/6. In this connection it is of interest to learn that the Canadian Minister of Finance announces that he has arranged with the British authorities for the purchase of this year's British Columbia salmon pack at a cost of between £1,600,000 and £1,800,000.

The tea market was quiet. There was no disposition to buy. Cables from Colombo stated that at yesterday's auction there it was proposed to offer 1,250,000lb, but the quality was undesirable. This was explained by the fact that the British controller had taken over all the high-grown teas with flavour. Shipments from two Java boats are on the market in Sydney. Shipments by one boat are attractive, but shipments by the other are not considered so good.

In oils, distributing business was good, but there was a marked disinclination to buy large quantities. Buyers had the idea that prices would come down. Linseed oil was available at from 7/8¼ for raw and at 7/10½ for boiled. In some cases higher rates were charged. Turpentine had sales at 6/3. Australian whitelead was quoted at £75 net. English was available at £86 and American at £84, all in cwt. packages, with the appropriate increases for smaller packages. Castor oil at 9/6 was reckoned good property.

The decrease on freights of general cargo cabled a couple of days ago means a reduction from £10 to £7/10/ a ton. When this fall of £2/10/ a ton is taken in conjunction with a fall previously reported in war risk insurance from 5 guineas per cent. to 5/ per cent. it enables one to see how goods on the water are affected. Thus goods costing £50 a ton would have shipping charges reduced by £2/10/ a ton for freight and £2/10/ a ton for war risk insurance, a total reduction of £5 a ton.

PIG SALES.

About 2450 pigs were forward for sale at the Abattoir Saleyards yesterday. These comprised all descriptions, with general quality fairly good, but porkers preponderated. The usual buyers were in attendance, and operated freely for backfatters, which were generally dearer. The market was very firm at best of late rates for baconers. Competition for porkers was irregular, and, while some sales were about on a par with last week's rates, others were cheaper, and the market generally was in buyers' favour.

Prime backfatters made to £8/15/ (odd to £11), good to £7/10/; prime baconers, to £5/3/, good to £4/9/; prime heavy porkers to £3/3/ (odd higher), good to 52/; prime light to 44/.

During Christmas and New Year weeks sales will not be held after December 17 until January 7.

MINING.

The sudden and unexpected rise of £11 to £40/10/ in the London price of lead created a stir in mining shares on the Stock Exchange yesterday. Broken Hill stocks advanced rapidly and recovered the depression of the past few days. "Bear" covering contributed to a sudden lift in prices and quotations after the last meeting were even higher than the listed sales indicated. B.H. Proprietary closed 3/3 higher at 57/9, and Norths advanced 3/6 to 58/. Junction Norths and Junctions recovered sharply to 12/11 and 6/10 respectively, and British rallied 3/ to 42/3. Operators generally were taken by surprise. The copper group reflected the recovery in silver-lead stocks, and Hampden were /9 higher at 16/, and other red metal productions hardened perceptibly. A fall of £15 in tin induced lower prices for tin stocks. Vegetable Creek fell back to 8/6, and Malayan stocks were inclined to weaken. Carpathia fell sharply to 14/3, a fall of 1/9 on the day. After an initially higher opening at 7/2 Mammoth Molybdenite reacted to 6/4½. Among gold issues Mt. Dudley recovered strongly to 6/1, despite persistent forward selling, which is heaping up a large bear account which, in view of the low price of the stock and the proximity of the first clean-up, would seem to be premature, if not over adventurous. However, the battery will tell a tale. Westonias were a shade higher, and Deeps moved up /3 to 14/9, while Centrals hardened to 18/2.

The following mining sales were listed:—

A large number of shareholders attended the meeting of the Junction North B.H. Mine, N.L., held at Vickery's-chambers yesterday, to afford the Sydney shareholders an opportunity of meeting the directors prior to the half-yearly meeting to be held in Melbourne. Mr. J. S. Palmer (chairman of directors presided. The chairman moved a resolution that the meeting recommend the half-yearly meeting in Melbourne to adopt the report and balance-sheet. He referred to the Pinnacles mine, which had justified the purchase, and to the Mayflower mine, which was acquired for a small figure, and the ore from which was suitable to the Junction North plant. Mr. Palmer also announced that at the board meeting prior to the meeting a dividend of 1/ per share was declared, payable on December 18. Mr. A. Rigby seconded the motion, which was carried.

PRICE OF LEAD.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

A sensational rise in the price of lead on the London market caused some stir on the Stock Exchange to-day. Yesterday the quotations stood at £29/10/ a ton for spot and £28/10/ a ton net for forward delivery. To-day's quotations were supplied showing a sudden rise of £11 a ton. The immediate effect of the news was to create a buoyant market for Barrier stocks.

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.

During the past week, associated with and following the heat-wave conditions over the greater part of the continent, monsoonal influences have steadily gained sway over tropical and eastern regions. This has been mostly due to the rarefaction of the heated atmosphere over inland parts offering inducement to the inflow of moisture-laden air from the surrounding oceans. Thus, a transition has occurred from hot and dry to warm and moist conditions, which are invariably associated with monsoonal developments. On the chart is depicted a monsoonal disturbance, which is the most extensive and active one treated, as Western, Northern, and Eastern Australia is gradually coming under its operations. The fact that the "high" to the southward has gradually gained in energy since Monday is also significant as co-operation is facilitated. Since 9 a.m. Monday light to moderate rainfall, with thunder, has occurred at many places in the NE quarter of the State, and light at a few stations on the South Coast. The heaviest amount was 209 points at Emmaville, on the northern tablelands. In Queensland many thunderstorms have been experienced in the northern half and a few in south-eastern and south-western parts. Elow received 225 points, Croydon 104, Cunnamulla 100, and Mackay 155 points. In the Northern Territory 296 points were registered at Daly Waters. Present indications favour a continuation of the monsoonal rains over the north-eastern half and coastal districts of New South Wales, with sultry northerly winds, some substantial falls at places, fine and cooler in the SW, with SW to SE winds; disturbed sea later on the coast.

Ocean Forecast.—Fresh southerlies around Tasmania, becoming strong and squally after passing the South Wales coast; elsewhere smooth to moderate.

(Before the Chief Justice (Sir Samuel Griffith), Mr. Justice Barton, Mr. Justice Gavan Duffy, Mr. Justice Rich, and Mr. Justice Powers.)

Judgment was reserved in the appeal M'Glew v New South Wales Malting Company, Ltd.

A WIFE'S PETITION.

Argument was heard on an appeal from a decision of Mr. Justice Gordon in Divorce Jurisdiction on a petition brought by Sarah Jane Wirth against Philip Wirth, circus proprietor, for the restitution of conjugal rights. Mr. Justice Gordon found that certain issues had been proved, but in consequence of a covenant for a deed of separation entered into between the parties, made some time previously, the petition was dismissed. The chief point for the High Court to decide was whether Mr. Justice Gordon was in error in holding that the particular deed was a bar against his granting a decree. Judgment was reserved. Mr. Ralston, K.C., and Mr. Power (instructed by Messrs. Minter, Simpson, and Co.) were for the petitioner appellant, and Mr. Perry (instructed by Mr. J. W. Abigail) for the respondent.

The Court adjourned till Thursday.

NO. 1 JURY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Pring and juries.)

ACCIDENTS TO WHARF WORKERS.

Erickson v Australian Steamships, Ltd.

The plaintiff, William Erickson, sued Australian Steamships, Ltd., as owners of the steamship Burwah, claiming £500 compensation for injuries received while working in the hold of the vessel on May 14 last. Plaintiff stated that while engaged, with mates, in unloading tallow at the bottom of No. 2 hold a basket of coal spilled through the hatch and fell on him, causing serious bodily injuries. While the men were engaged below coal was being discharged from a lighter into bunkers abaft the hold, and it was contended that as the coal baskets were being slung in dangerous proximity of the cargo hatch precautions, which commonly were taken, in similar circumstances, should have been adopted to obviate such an accident. As it was alleged no such care was exercised, plaintiff charged negligence. Mr. Armstrong and Mr. Perry (instructed by Mr. J. B. Moffatt) appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Broomfield (instructed by Messrs. Baxter, Bruce, and Ebsworth) for the defendant company.

The plaintiff was non-suited on a ground taken by Mr. Broomfield that the negligence, if any, was the negligence of a fellow-servant of the company, and not of the defendants.

Rand v A.U.S.N. Co., Ltd.

The plaintiff in this case, George Rand, sued the Australian United Steam Navigation Company, Ltd., claiming £500 compensation for injuries received through the fall of a bag of iron ore while engaged in unloading the s.s. Wodonga at the defendant company's wharf, Sussex-street, on June 11. It was alleged and contended that the gear used for hoisting, which consisted of nets with rope strands, some of which were frayed, was improper material to employ for such work, and that, to secure safety, nets of steel rope or strong canvas ought to have been provided. Plaintiff stated that although protests had been made against the continued use of the rope nets the company's officers replied that no other appliances were available. The defendants denied negligence. The same counsel and solicitors for plaintiff and defendants as appeared in the foregoing case were engaged in the action.

The case is part heard.

IN EQUITY.

(Before Mr. Justice Harvey.)

WINDING-UP ORDER.

Mount Bora Goldmining Co.

George Smith, of Enmore, near Armidale, miner, petitioned for an order for the winding-up of the Mount Bora Goldmining Co., on the ground that the company was unable to pay its debts. In his affidavit in support the petitioner stated that the company was registered in 1914, its nominal capital being £12,000, consisting of 300 ordinary shares and 300 preference shares, each of £20. The claim of the petitioner was for £57, being wages due to him by the company as a miner and caretaker. His written request for payment, he said, had been ignored by the company. Mr. H. H. Mason, instructed by Messrs. MacKenzie and MacKenzie (Sydney agents for Messrs. MacKenzie and Biddulph, of Armidale), appeared for the petitioner. The respondent company was unrepresented.

His Honor made the usual winding-up order, and appointed Mr. William Harrington Palmer official liquidator.

A MOLYBDENITE MINE.

Shaw v Monday.

Archibald John Shaw, bachelor and clerk in Holy Orders, at Randwick, died intestate on August 26, 1916, leaving an estate valued at £15,246. Letters of administration were granted to his sister, Blanche Amelia Monday, the principal defendant in the present suit. Other defendants are nephews and nieces of the deceased. Charles William Frazer Shaw, a brother of the deceased, who is the plaintiff in the suit, made, inter alia, the following charges in his statement of claim. He alleged that administratrix omitted from the stamp duties affidavit a one-half interest in a molybdenite mine at Deepwater. The plaintiff also alleged that Mrs. Monday had told him that the sale of the said half interest in the mine would be subject to the Court's approval, but later she wrote to him that she was legally advised that such approval was not necessary. On January 15 last testator's half interest in the mine was sold by the defendant Monday for £1800, which sum, the plaintiff contended, was considerably below proper value. The plaintiff further alleged that the administratrix had collected a large sum, in connection with assets in the estate, which was lying in a bank at current account uninvested. Allegations were also made with reference to a proposed compromise by the administratrix respecting a claim of the Sacred Heart Mission. The plaintiff asked that the estate be administered by the Court, and that Mrs. Monday be ordered to recoup to the estate the excess of the true value over £1800 of the deceased's interest in the mine.

The administratrix of the estate, Mrs. Monday, denied most of the plaintiff's allegations. She stated that she had acted honestly in the sale of the half interest in the mine, and she considered that she might fairly be excused for the breach of trust, if any, in respect of the sale. She further stated that she was willing to consent to a decree for the administration of the estate, so far as related to an inquiry as to the debts and liabilities of the deceased. Mr. L. Abrahams (instructed by Mr. Mark Mitchell) appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. R. K. Manning (instructed by Messrs. Pigott and Stinson) for the defendant Monday.

The case is part heard.

GAS METER MAKERS.

Mr. Henwood, appearing on behalf of the Amalgamated Tinsmiths and Sheet-metal Workers' Union, applied for a new award under the Iron and Shipbuilding Trades Group, No. 5 (Gas Meters, State) Board. The union claimed a new classification and increased rate, in view of the advanced cost of living and the skill required in the industry, the suggested advance being from 1/4½ to 2/ per hour. Mr. Sheridan (instructed by Messrs. Norton, Smith, and Co.) appeared for Messrs. Parkinson and M. B. Cowper, Ltd., gas meter makers.

His Honor reserved judgment.

ENGINEERS DISLIKE ADJOURNMENT.

In connection with the application of the Iron Trades Employers' Association for an award under the Iron and Shipbuilding Trades Group No. 1 Board (Engineers), Mr. Smedley applied for an adjournment of the matter in consequence of the absence in Melbourne of the advocate appointed to conduct the employers' case. Mr. Bryant, representing the Australasian Engineers, said that there was a great deal of dissatisfaction among the engineers at the delay, and asked that no further adjournment should be allowed after Thursday. His Honor said that in future no adjournment would be allowed by reason of the fact that an advocate was away from the Court. Parties in such an emergency must brief other counsel.

LOCO. AND STORES DEPT.

Joint applications by the Association of Employees (Mechanical Branch), Government Railways, and others, for an award was adjourned last week, with a view to some agreement being reached at a conference of the parties. It was now reported that no arrangement had been arrived at, and the Court accordingly proceeded with the hearing. The claims cover some 150 classes of work, commencing with the basic wage of 10s per day, and ranging up to 15s per day. Mr. Croft, who appeared for the Association of Employees, conducted the case on behalf of the unions; and Mr. Bretnall appeared for the Railway Commissioners. Mr. Henwood appeared for the Australasian Society of Engineers, the Federated Enginedrivers and Firemen, and others; Mr. Cecil Coghlan (Messrs. C. A. Coghlan and Co.) for the Federated Ironworkers; and Mr. Moffatt for the A.W.U.

The matter is part heard.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Ferguson.)

TRAGEDY IN A CELL.

Charles Eugene Elise Langlois, a middle-aged man of French descent, was charged with the murder of William P. Brabazon in a gaol cell at the Central Police Station. Mr. Bignold (instructed by Mr. T. M. Kemmis) appeared for the defence.

Constable Wells stated that on the night of August 30 he locked up Brabazon, who was in a drunken condition, and a little later Langlois, who was also drunk, was put into the same cell at the Central Police Station. Some time afterwards, when a third man was being locked up, the police discovered Brabazon in an unconscious condition on the floor of the cell. In answer to questions put to him Langlois declared that Brabazon had insulted him and he "got to him." Brabazon was taken to the hospital, where his death occurred. The medical evidence was that Brabazon had an extensive bruise in the abdomen, which had caused hemorrhage. The accused stated that he had been drinking heavily before being locked up, and remembered nothing of what occurred in the cell.

The Crown Prosecutor (Mr. Herbert Harris) stated that he would not press the charge of murder, but contended that it was competent for the jury—if they were satisfied about accused's sanity at the time of the occurrence—to return a verdict on a charge of manslaughter.

After an hour's deliberation a verdict of not guilty was brought in, and the accused was discharged.

BUSH FIRES.

CULCAIRN, Tuesday.

Bush-fire brigades throughout the Culcairn shire are organising and placing their fire-fighting appliances in good order for the summer. Already several fires of a small nature have occurred. A few days ago a local farmer lost seven acres of standing crop and 30 acres of cut hay. Owing to the heavy winter rainfall and nearly three months' drought following, grass and crops are high and highly inflammable.

JERILDERIE, Tuesday.

Another bush fire broke out near Bundure Siding on Monday afternoon on Thurrowa, on Yanko Creek side of the railway. It burnt several thousands of acres of grass and fencing up to the Jerilderie-Narrandera road, where it was checked.

CONSERVATORIUM OF MUSIC.

At this evening's final lecture-concert the plebiscite programme will consist of the Posthumous Quartet, Op. 132 in A Minor of Beethoven, by the Verbrugghen String Quartet, and the Piano Quintet of Dvorak, Mr. Henry Penn being the pianist.

On Saturday next, at 2.30 p.m., there will be a repeat performance of Beethoven's wonderful Ninth Symphony ("The Choral"), and the "Emperor" Concerto, with Mr. Henry Penn again as pianist. At this concert a plebiscite will be taken for an extra concert to be given the following Saturday, and special attention is drawn to the list of works published in the advertising columns, from which the programme is to be selected.

AMUSEMENTS.

MISS LEAH MYERS' CONCERT.

A crowded audience greeted Miss Leah Myers (from the studio of M. Albert Goossens) at King's Hall last night, when the rich-voiced mezzo-soprano opened her song-recital with Liszt's "Lorelei." The interpretation of the tender slumberous charm of the melody, interrupted by passages of reflective recitative, completely won every listener, and the singer then sat down to the piano and added with caressive expression "The Waters of Minnetonga" (Lieurance). The artist, who should be more often heard in public, contributed an admirable rendering of the aria of Lia from Debussy's early opera, "La Enfant Prodigue," and in a generous outpouring of vocal power at the climax realised all the anguish of the mother's lament over her long-absent son. Miss Myers again accepted the encore by accompanying herself, adding Liza Lehmann's dainty little song "There are Fairies in My Garden." Mr. F. Mowat Carter's melody of tone in a beautiful Andante for violin by Lalo; Mr. A. Goossens' dramatic delivery of the regimental song "Au Pays," by Augusta Holmes; and Mr. Henri Penn's brilliant technique in Chopin's "Tarantelle," led to further additions to the programme. Mrs. Mowat Carter and Miss Vera Houghton were the accompanists of the evening.

MISS LYONS' WAR CHEST SOIREE.

Miss Rose Lyons directed her pupils' patriotic entertainment of fancy dancing, choral songs, and tableaux at St. James's Hall last night, in aid of the War Chest Fund. An overflowing attendance resulted, and the spectacular ballets and solo dances were overwhelmingly applauded. The programme was formidably comprehensive, but the avoidance of unnecessary encores and brisk platform management kept affairs well in hand. The group-dancing in various costumes included "Tarantella," "Spring Maidens" (and they certainly did spring!), "Roses," in which the junior girls employed pink scarves with dainty effect, Grecian exercises, and minuets. Several choral songs with dances were also admired, notably "Princess of the Willow," in which the girls wore flowered silk kimonos, and waved their fans with rhythmical grace. "When the Boys Come Marching Home" was an especially popular number. At the end of the evening Miss Lyons produced an elaborate patriotic tableau, "Peace Receiving the Allies," in which Britannia, her dominions, and all her Allies, were picturesquely represented to spirited music by an orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Will Osborne.

TOWN CLERKSHIP OF NEWCASTLE.
In the Sunday Times of October 20 it was stated that "Mr. Davey was town clerk at Inverell for some time before he went to Bunbury, W.A. He returned to the Northern town at the Council's invitation. From there he went to Grafton, and held the Town Clerkship at the time when the Council resigned and when Mr. Truman was appointed as administrator." The excellent work done by Mr. Davey as town clerk and city engineer of Grafton in restoring civic order in that town is well known."

AT RANDWICK.
SUNNYSIDE.
A Superb Site and a surpassing outlook, a sequestered spot, easily accessible on the main road, overlooking the Racecourse, the Western Suburbs, the City, and Centennial Park, a panoramic wealth of variety both by day and at night.
Far back in the early days at the beginning of settlement at Randwick the late Walter Bradley selected for his home this and the land adjoining upon which to build his residence.
Some seven years ago the present owner purchased that portion upon which stands Sunnyside, a substantially-built House of Stone, containing Reception-room, Dining-room, Billiard or Smoke Room, 3 large Bedrooms, Dressing-room, 3 other Bedrooms, Servants' Dining-room, Kitchen, Pantries, Laundry, and other offices. Motor Garage and Stabling.
The Land has an area of close on two acres, and fronts Allison-road, Bradley-street, and Wansey-road, and small Reserve.
The Grounds are laid out in Garden, Tennis Court, and lawns, and its unique position prevents any buildings being erected, destroying the magnificent views. The drive to the City is along the main Randwick-road, or through Centennial Park, which is reached by Motor in 15 minutes, or by tram, which is close by, in 25 minutes.
FOR SALE, on extended terms, owing to the Owner's early departure abroad; or TO LET on Lease.
For further particulars apply to
J. E. O'BRIEN, Sunnyside, Allison-road, Randwick.

WHAT IS THIS? Does it not strike you as conclusive evidence that after offering £100 Reward to anyone who has a Remedy other than my own (which no one has claimed) for the Total Destruction of Superfluous Hair, there are no other remedies?
